LABOR BOARD DENIES UNIONS' "LIVING WAGE"

While conceding "a living wage" to be a just standard, the United States labor board, in a majority opinion made public last night, flatly denied the living wage theory advanced by representatives of railway labor. The opinion declared application of the principle urged by union leaders, "if carried to its legitimate conclusion, would wreck every railroad in the United States, and if extended to other industries, would carry into economic ruin."

The formal statement of the board's opinion on this most vexing question came in reply to a labor board decision previously announced ten days ago, when the board ordered an increase of two cents per hour in the minimum wage of railway maintenance employees, establishing a minimum rate ranging from 25 to 37 cents an hour. The board had asked a minimum of 48 cents an hour.

Reply to Wharton.

The present majority pronouncement is in the nature of a rejoinder to a Wharton, one of the three labor members of the board, who submitted a dissenting opinion advocating recognition of the living wage theory.

The essential difference in the opinions seems to center in the articles "the living wage" and "the living wage." The majority members of the board contend all their members have provided a living wage. With Mr. Wharton supporting them, labor representatives have challenged this assertion, and have demanded application of "the living wage" principle.

For Family of Five.

The living wage urged by railway representatives has been defined as one which would support a family of five in health and reasonable comfort, such family being assumed to consist of husband, wife and three dependent children under sixteen years of age. The union spokesmen before the board have contended the lowest living budget available shows "the living wage" for common labor should range from 72 to 75 cents an hour.

With reference to this, the majority opinion reads:

"This would add approximately $3,125,282 to the annual payroll, bringing it up to $5,089,445,993. Total expenditures would then be approximately $5,484,771,735, and total revenues $5,484,771,735, and the carriers would face an annual deficit of $2,843,518."

No Profit to Stockholders.

Referring to the admission of labor representatives that it would be impracticable "to establish the living wage principle all at once," the majority opinion asserts that even the minimum would bring an annual deficit to carriers of $378,078,125, and adds:

"In either instance, there would not be a cent of return for stockholders. In course, for those who desire government ownership this would be a quick method of getting it, for it is a sure thing that the public would not stand the imposition of higher rates to pay such deficit."

After challenging labor statistics as the average size of families and the number of dependents, the majority members deal with the proposal for a wage inquiring "reasonable comfort" as follows:

"To ascertain what is 'reasonable comfort,' it is proposed that experts prescribe a standard of living for a family of five, setting out in detail what the experts think such a family would have in food, clothing, furniture, housing and all the other necessities of life."

Can't Set Common Standard.

"The fallacy of this proposal is inherent and fundamental. That it would be wise and practical, under any conditions, to establish an arbitrary standard of living for several millions of people is not apparent. That the desired requirement of all men are equal in living is not correct, and that any committee of experts could set an arbitrary living standard upon which a wage could be practically based has not been demonstrated anywhere."

"If theorists should evolve such a standard of living, it would not be possible to obtain any general conformity to it by those for whom it was evolved. Standards of living have been tried by natural processes, and have been picked up by the scruff of the neck and hauled into a new standard of living. Such a change in the individual matter of growth and development, and the social and economic benefits, but it attempted by legislation is a wasteful absurdity."

AN HEIR AT LARGE

MR. WILLIAMS

PART II—CHAPTER I.

Mr. Williams closed his desk and, after a last careful survey to see that all was well, left the office. His work was cleaned up, his employer had given him a week's leave, and nothing now stood between him and the sentimental pilgrimage back to the old home town where he and his wife were to observe their twentieth wedding anniversary.

On the subway and later on the suburban train which he had sought with unbroken regularity for years, his thoughts were pleasantly active. It would be nice to go back and revisit the scenes where he and Nellie had spent their youth, where they had courted and married, and where Arthur was born. This was to be their first trip back since they had moved away fourteen years before. Something had always come up to prevent their return.

As a boy he had pictured himself going away to make his fortune and then returning years later, rich and famous, to parade the streets before the envious eyes of his old playmates. He smiled sadly. That dream had not been realized. The fortune had not come and his return would have nothing of triumphal glory in it. He was a salaried man, in the office of Andrew MacFall, steady, sober, hard-working and conscientious, but fortune in his capricious had not seen fit to bestow upon him any of the favors she showered upon other less deserving. Ah, well, he had much to be thankful for just the same.

One dream at least had come true. His son was in college at last. What a pull it had been! And what obstacles had arisen along the way! It seemed that Fate had watched him with a diabolical eye and whenever his savings rose something always happened. There was Arthur's long illness, with doctor's bills, and Nellie wearing herself out at his bedside to save the expense of a nurse. That had wiped out the savings of two years, and then when he had struggled back to an even keel and saw his savings again increase, Nellie had had to have three operations.

"I mustn't think of that now," he thought. "That's all behind us. The big thing is that we have succeeded in putting Arthur in college and he is to have the education I never was able to get."

This dream had been the reigning one. Henry Williams and his wife had sacrificed everything to achieve that end. Pleasures were skimmed, rigorous self-denial guarded the household expenses—everything was subordinate to the hope and ambition that was centered in their only child. More years of patient drudgery and sacrifice stretched away before his graduation, but the burden would be lightened by the thought that all the advantages and opportunities to be had in a great college were now within reach of their son. It only remained for him to seize the golden gift held out to him.

He kissed his wife. "Everything all ready?" he asked. "Goodness, I hope so! There've been a million odds and ends to do, but I don't think I've forgotten anything. Have you the tickets?"

He held them up. "Nothing now but the big trip. Tomorrow night at this time we'll be around a fried chicken dinner at Aunt Mary's."

"Are you sure we can afford this trip, Henry? Things do cost so much these days."

"We'll not think of the cost this time," he exclaimed with forced gaiety. "You are to have a real trip at last. You deserve it if you've a woman did."

He patted her shoulder affectionately. "I want to see the place where you said 'Yes'—you could have done lots better, dear—and where Arthur first landed in this vale of tears."

They sat down to a cheerful dinner. "Any letter from Arthur?" he asked. She shook her head.

"I guess those boys don't have any too much time. The college course is pretty hard, I guess."

"They're really early that they might be fresh for the memorable trip of the morrow."

At midnight, in the midst of a feverish dream wherein he was fighting, vainly, trying to catch a train whose starting bell was ringing, Mr. Williams awoke with a start. The telephone was ringing. It was Western Union.

Send two hundred immediately. Don't fail. Am writing.

MURDER BY MAD WOMAN; SUICIDE, HAVRE VERDICT

(Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.)

MRS. CARLETON

Rector's Romantic Past Is Recalled.

Havre, Mont., Oct. 29.—(Special.)—Mrs. Margaret Carleton, wife of former District Judge Frank Carleton, was found by a coroner's jury here at midnight to have been the slayer of the Rev. J. L. Christler, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church and "bishop of all outdoors," who was shot to death in his home early Friday morning.

The inquest verdict, after the jury had been in session five hours, returned this finding of fact and the further fact that Mrs. Carleton shot the rector while "temporarily mentally deranged," destroying herself by shooting herself through the heart an instant after killing the rector.

Authentic information relative to the day's developments in the tragedy in which Mrs. Carleton terminated her romantic relationship with the rector have been difficult to procure because of the attitude of Havre officials.

Coroner Resented Public Interest.

Coroner John Holland took the position that the public had no right to be interested and spoke in a resentful way of attempts made by press representatives to learn developments.

Mrs. Christler, dressed in deep mourning, was the main witness at the inquest. In modulated tones she recited the events of the tragedy and incidents of the evening leading up to it.

She said that after the church service which she attended with the rector and the Rev. Charles Chapman of Butte, at which the rector presided, she remembered that she had left the key in the door and the lights burning. Her husband, she said, left the witness and Mr. Chapman and went home to get the key and extinguish the lights. On arriving there he found that the key had been taken from the door, and he could not enter the house.

Finds Woman in Home.

Mrs. Christler testified that she had a key and went home alone after the rector's return to put out the lights. Arrived there, she said, she discovered somebody was inside and before entering summoned O. C. House, an attorney living next door. He stood on the doorstep, she testified, while she went in.

Mrs. Christler continued, she found Mrs. Carleton tearing up the rector's photographs. Mrs. Carleton talked incoherently, she said, and failed to make plain the purpose of her visit.

Mrs. Christler said she finally persuaded Mrs. Carleton to accompany her and they left together, meeting the rector and Mr. Chapman as they went down the street.

The Christlers left Mrs. Carleton at the meeting place and went to the railroad station with Mr. Chapman, returning about midnight to their home.

Slayer's Cryptic Remark.

A short time after their arrival there was a knock on the door, she testified, and Mrs. Carleton entered, remarking "I have a letter for you." She had no place in her husband's life, Mrs. Christler said that after talking a few minutes in an attempt to procure an explanation of Mrs. Carleton's words and actions, the rector arose and walked towards his sleeping room.

Mrs. Christler walked to the front door to open it for Mrs. Carleton and as Mrs. Carleton was turned she heard two shots in quick succession.

Turning, she testified, she saw Mrs. Carleton fall through a doorway into a small hall. Running back, she saw that Mrs. Carleton was dead and stepped over her body to reach her husband, but he had fallen in such a way that his body partially blocked the door.

Denies Record of Death Threat.

She then summoned the police and two physicians, Dr. Foss and Dr. McKenzie. No threats were made nor any violence indicated by Mrs. Carleton at any time during their conversations.

House corroborated Mrs. Christler's statements concerning the discovery of Mrs. Carleton in the Christler home, and said that about 10 o'clock on the night of the shooting he saw Mrs. Carleton reach up and turn out a light in the house.

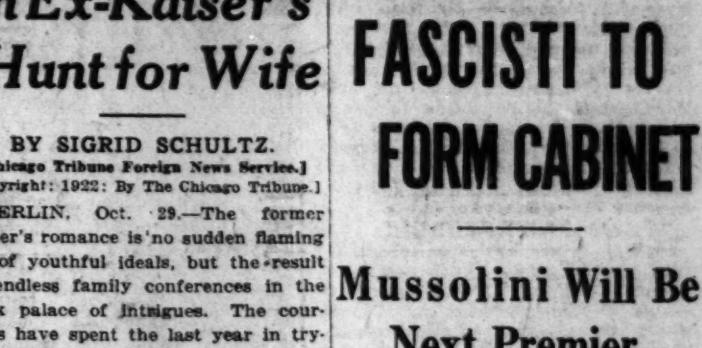

Mrs. House testified that on a previous occasion she had seen Mrs. Carleton attempting to force an entrance to the Christler home.

It was brought out by Mrs. M. E. Martin, Havre city librarian and a close friend of Mrs. Carleton, that about 8 o'clock on the evening of the shooting she was called to Mrs. Carleton's room.

Bare Intrigue in Ex-Kaiser's Hunt for Wife

(Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.)

PRINCE HENRY

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The former kaiser's romance is no sudden flaming up of youthful ideals, but the result of endless family conferences in the dark palace of intrigues. The courtiers have spent the last year in trying to induce the kaiser to marry, and if possible marry a bride of their choice. Ladies in attendance invited their hopeful nieces and relatives, and the crown prince suggested candidates.

The Hohenzollerns followed the method of orthodox Jewish families by appointing a "schatchen" to search for a bride. This duty was entrusted to Prince Henry, brother of the kaiser, who was one of the strongest backers of Princess Hermione de Rous in the competition for the title of kaiserin.

Spurned by Wirttemberg's Queen.

Prince Henry tried first to induce the kaiser to marry the widow of the King of Wurttemberg, Queen Charlotte. All the sons of the kaiser approved of this choice. Neither Queen Charlotte nor the kaiser relished the idea. Gossip tongues say each considered the other too old.

Baroness Rochow, first love of the kaiser, who visited Dorn repeatedly, was one of the numerous candidates, according to the best informed sources.

Defeats Count Camarilla.

Thanks to her energy and youth, Princess Hermione surmounted the court camarilla, as she terms it, but there will be a "palace revolution" after her triumphant entry into Dorn.

Werner disapproved the wedding will be swept out with an iron broom as were Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and Gen. Ludendorff, who frowned at the news of the wedding and therefore have not been invited to witness the ceremony. The only person to whom the future kaiserin has bowed is the former crown princess, to whom, because of her prestige, Princess Hermione has made concessions, hoping to obtain approval, which has not yet been received.

WOMAN IS LURED TO A ROOF, THEN HURLED TO DEATH

(Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, Oct. 29.—Two murders, one of a young woman who was lured to the roof of an office building and hurled to her death, and the other of a man whose body was found bullet riddled and wrapped in a burly bag and left in the gutter in front of St. Paul's Lutheran church, are being investigated tonight.

Aaron Swabberg saw a dark object burst past his window, strike several clothes lines, and land in a yard which separates the house in which he lives from a seven story office building. He found the body of a young woman in the yard.

Detectives found that the office building was locked and that the door leading to the roof was barred. Finger prints of the young woman were found on the coping of the roof, indicating she had engaged in a struggle before she was finally hurled to her death.

NURSE, DIVORCED FROM WARMATE, ENDS LIFE BY GAS

Miss Florence Macnamara, a nurse, 30 years old, 4164 Drexel boulevard, was found lying dead in front of a gas stove in her room early yesterday morning with a piece of tubing connected to the stove in her mouth and her head covered.

Miss Macnamara had been a nurse in the war at Fort Dodge, Ia., and at Fort Sheridan, and while at the latter post married Lieut. William Evans. Eighteen months ago they separated. She returned to nursing and recently obtained a divorce.

Dependency over the separation is believed to have been the cause of suicide.

KING INVITES FASCISTI TO FORM CABINET

(Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.)

MUSSOLINI

Mussolini Will Be Next Premier.

BY V. DE SANTO.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Oct. 29.—Following the refusal of Antonio Salandra to form a cabinet, the king today asked Benito Mussolini, chief of the Fascisti, to form a cabinet. This announcement caused surprise, although a number of Milan deputies and senators had telegraphed Sig. Facta that the only way out was the formation of a Mussolini cabinet.

The city today presents a normal aspect. Street cars, buses, and cable are running as usual.

The order for the suspension of all newspapers was revoked soon after its promulgation, and the Giornale d'Italia and Popolo d'Italia, both Fascist organs, appeared with all the latest news. The latter, which is Sig. Mussolini's personal organ, published a proclamation by him saying the Fascisti military command had assumed direction of affairs.

Held ex-Premier's Papers.

Attacks by bands of Fascisti were made this afternoon upon the offices of former Premier Nitti's two papers, Il Paese and La Epoca, both of which are strongly anti-Fascist. This resulted in the premises being occupied by the Nationalists. Later, however, the military expelled the invaders and occupied the offices.

The king today is believed by all papers for refusing to sign the Fascist cabinet's order for martial law. It appears that the cabinet acted on the matter without consulting the king, and when the edict was brought to him for his signature he refused.

Fascisti Hold Several Cities.

Pisa, Florence, Perugia, and several other cities are now firmly held by the Fascisti.

About 1,000 Fascisti in black shirts and in trench helmets are standing around the street corners of Rome, in defiance of orders to parade. Near the parliament building a band organ grinders keep playing a gay waltz.

I went to the Fascisti headquarters at 10 o'clock yesterday to get some information. I found it was being closed up by military orders. A Fascist leader said, "We are closing shop for a day, but we will be back tomorrow. Give us all the information you want."

The Viminale is the seat of the ministry of the interior and the offices of the premier.

King Awaits Mussolini.

ROME, Oct. 29.—(By The Associated Press.)—Benito Mussolini, the Fascist leader, is expected to arrive here this evening, and if he accepts the king's invitation will further need for Fascist action will be ended. Their entrance into Rome will be the simple evidence of their victory.

Deputy Chiosso, describing the situation this morning, said that southern Italy had been isolated from the rest of the country by bands of Fascisti commanded by Deputy Caradonna. Other bands were encircling the towns in Basilicata and Calabria. The Fascist had occupied the airdrome at Foggia, Tuscany and Umbria were everywhere.

A semi-official statement denied sensational rumors circulated abroad particularly a report that King Victor Emmanuel had been assassinated. The statement added that with the exception of certain isolated incidents of an unimportant character the country was absolutely tranquil and the cabinet crisis was approaching a solution.

Barber Wire Around Rome.

With Rome quiet, some of the police and military measures of yesterday were withdrawn today, but armed patrols were still to be seen in the streets. Cavalry occupied strategic points and the entire garrison was kept in readiness.

Yesterday soldiers proceeded to the outskirts of the town and set up barbed wire entanglements; the railroad lines were closely guarded and all the bridges over the Tiber were shut off with wire and protected by machine guns. The various ministries and public buildings were occupied by troops, and the police cut off the central part of the city with barricades and wire entanglements.

BRITISH 'HOLMES' IS PUZZLED BY JERSEY MURDER

Places Little Credence in "Pig Woman's" Tale.

BULLETIN.
New York, Oct. 29.—(Special.)—Angered by doubt cast upon her story of the Hall-Mills murder, Mrs. Jane Gibson tonight offered to confront Mrs. Frances Hall. "I will defy her to deny she was present at the time of the murders or that she returned to weep over the body of the slain husband," she said.

New York, Oct. 29.—Wireless synopses of the mystery of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his wife, Mrs. Frances Hall, were the first greetings extended to Sir Basil Thomson, K. C. B., called the embodiment of the fictional Sherlock Holmes, who arrived on the Caronia today.

Sir Basil, formerly head of the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard and who played a prominent role in the silent war against spies in Great Britain during war time, made it clear that while Sherlock Holmes was an interesting character between book covers he would be most disturbing in the flesh, particularly as an aid in solving real crimes. Organizations, individuals, solved the criminal mysteries of the world today, he said.

Interested in Case.
"I am not conversant with the facts in the Hall-Mills case," Sir Basil said in answer to questions, "and I'm sure it would not be 'cricket' to venture opinions. Yet the case has every element of an absorbing mystery."

The British criminologist, when told of the latest character in the case, made it clear that while Sherlock Holmes was an interesting character between book covers he would be most disturbing in the flesh, particularly as an aid in solving real crimes. Organizations, individuals, solved the criminal mysteries of the world today, he said.

"The very discrepancies may give the authenticity of her evidence," Sir Basil said. "Experience with South sea island natives may be founding the facts in a murder even so remote as one in a town in New Jersey. The natives, coached by their chiefs in the description of some primitive crime, will tell comical stories which coincide with precision and that very precision proves the fraudulence of the story. Honest evidence about a crime never coincides."

Mild Comment on Sleuths.
Sir Basil expressed surprise when told of the tardy examination of the body of Mrs. Mills. While he made it clear that he did not criticize the handling of the case, he declared that a thorough examination was obviously the first step to be taken after the discovery of the bodies.

"Crimes of passion, as I suppose this has been," he said, "are universal. The principals are usually younger than in this case. Money, ambition, or other material causes are usually the motives of middle age crime. The British criminologist, son of the late Archbishop of York, has received several requests to investigate the New Jersey murder, but has refused them. He said, principally because of his meager knowledge of the case, the ethical question concerned and the pressure of lecture engagements."

Reactor's Watch Found.
The watch that the reactor wore on the night he was murdered has been located. New Brunswick police are now seeking a colored man who offered it for sale to Otto Bonfill of this city. The name of the man and a description of him is in their possession. A week ago a colored man employed by Bonfill told him he knew where he could get him a good watch cheap. Bonfill was interested and his employee led him to the home of another colored man, who showed him an engine turned gold watch with open face, stem wind and stem set. He wanted $10 for it.

Bonfill recalled the description of the minister's watch, and accompanied by two detectives, he returned, but the colored man was out. He is being hunted now.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

DEMI-WETS ADD TO CANDIDATES; SOME SUB ROSA

Not Expedient to Name All of Them.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(Special.)—"Growing dissatisfaction throughout the country with prohibition laws which fall to prohibit is being steadily reflected in the attitude of aspirants for congressional honors at the November elections," declares the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in a statement issued today, announcing a supplementary list of candidates endorsed by the association.

"The association, numbering nearly 400,000 members in all parts of the country," the statement says, "is against the return of the saloon, but stands for the manufacture and sale of wine and beer under proper regulations."

Among the senators who are candidates for reelection who are added to the "wet" list are: Hiram Johnson, California (Republican), and Joseph I. France, Maryland (Republican). In Maryland the association also endorses William C. Bruce, who is the Democratic candidate for the United States senate.

O'Brien in New List.
In Illinois the only candidate for congress added to the original wet list is E. J. O'Brien, Democrat, of the Eleventh district. One other midwest candidate, C. J. McLeod, in the Thirtieth Michigan district, is added.

"We have knowledge of the views of these men that satisfies us that they stand for real temperance, as opposed to drastic legislation which has brought the illicit traffic to its volume," said G. C. Hinckley, national secretary of the association, in announcing the new names.

Indorsed Without Promises.
"Not all of them have directly expressed themselves as in favor of all of the tenets of our association. Our indorsement, however, speaks for itself as being in support of candidates whom we have satisfactory reasons for regarding as liberal and to be preferred over other candidates."

An additional list of forty candidates has been compiled by the association, all of whom would receive its support. In Kansas, Mr. Hinckley said, there were three congressional candidates upon whom the association felt it could depend to vote wet, if they were elected.

SHOT; FRACTURES LEG OF MAN WHO DID THE SHOOTING

Ralph Iovinella, 47 years old, 440 South Racine avenue, and Michael Iusello, 27 years old, 608 S. Sholto street, were taken to the Bridge hospital yesterday, the older man with a fractured leg and the younger with a gunshot wound in the chest.

Iusello, who had been discharged by Iovinella two weeks ago from his employment as a taxi driver, came to Iovinella's home and caused RALPH IOVINELLA a disturbance. Iovinella shot him in the chest, whereupon Iusello knocked him down and jumping on his leg, fractured it.

BIG INDUSTRY HALTED BY HIGH VALUE ON LAND

Refusal of State Auditor W. T. Oliver of Indiana to place a fair valuation on 248 acres of land claimed by the state is blocking the location in Whiting of a plant of the Jones-Laughlin Steel company, according to the Whiting Commercial club. Business men will protest to state officials against the exorbitant valuation which it is claimed is preventing a deal which would bring to Whiting a $50,000,000 industry.

The land is part of the bed of Lake George and a section of a 1,100 acre tract hitherto supposed to be the property of the East Chicago Land company, but recently claimed by the state. Appraisers value the land at $25 per acre. The auditor holds it worth $500,000.

BULGARIA JOINS ITS NEIGHBORS AGAINST TURKS

Balkans Solid for Autonomy in Western Thrace.

BY FRANK WILLS.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 29.—The evacuation of Thrace is scheduled to be completed at midnight. Chakir Bey and Turk functionaries will enter at 6 a. m. tomorrow. They have decided, on account of the Adrianople evacuation being incomplete, to establish temporary administrative headquarters at Tchorlof. A Turk military mission today left Angora for Teheran.

BY LARRY RUE.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
SOFIA, Oct. 29.—Outlining his foreign policy tonight, Premier Stambouliski demanded the near east peace conference establish an autonomy in western Thrace. He was speaking in behalf of Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Bulgaria.

"Bulgaria is desirous of making war reparations, but it cannot do the impossible," the premier said. "A cash reduction in the amount and a postponement of payments until 1925 is necessary. Bulgaria wants a strong league of nations to repair the injustice of the peace treaties, which is impossible while the United States, Germany and Russia are not members."

Slap at Reds.
Complaining of the troubles caused by Gen. Wrangel and his followers, M. Stambouliski denounced as a Bulgarian because of the formation of bands affiliated with Angora and Moscow was threatening to drive Bulgaria to bolshevism.

"I am confident a revision of the Sevres treaty means a revision of the Balkan peace," he said. "Our relations with Turkey are friendly. We have common interests, but every one is Bulgaria's enemy who bars the outlet to the Aegean sea. We do not believe Mustafa Kemal Pasha will do more than ask an autonomy for western Thrace, which is necessary for Roumania and Serbia, as well as Bulgaria."

MOSCOW IN DOUBT

BY GEORGE SELDES.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—Russia has not yet decided whether she will attend the conference at Lausanne to decide the future status of the Dardanelles. Numerous leaders and a part of the official press strongly oppose participation "at a second conference after Turkey has been taken and foot by the first conference," he said.

"The entente is hoping Russia will be forced to accept the situation," another part of officials is pleading for acceptance of the invitation from the entente, which Mr. Peters of the British trade mission has handed to M. Tchitcherine.

Russia Expects Recognition.
The invitation is some satisfaction to Russia, which has sent numerous notes to the allies against isolating Russia. Coming immediately after the change in the British government, it is taken as an indication that Prime Minister Bonar Law will follow a different near eastern policy and recognize Russia, which, according to soviet

"Seek to Isolate Turkey."
Russia's peace program, which was made known to the entente and to the public through M. Tchitcherine's statement to THE TRIBUNE, is believed here to be seriously worrying the allies, who, according to the official Moscow press, "want to take from Turkey her strongest support and leave Turkey isolated in the Dardanelles conference, where Russia will be unable to influence the decisions forced upon Turkey."

TURKS FOR VENICE PARLEY

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 29.—The allied announcement that the Turks will accept the peace conference at Lausanne on Nov. 13 is not correct, according to Hamid Bey, Kemalist representative here. He states that the Turks will accept the conference on Nov. 13, but demand an Italian locality, preferably Venice or Trieste. Kiazim Karabekir Pasha, formerly in command of the Caucasus front, has been appointed successor to Ismet Pasha, who has taken over Jusuf Kemal's job as foreign minister. Hamid Bey will succeed Kiazim. He formerly was in command on the Ismid front. Ismet and Fevzi Bey are expected to be the Turkish delegates to the peace conference, which has been limited to two by the allies.

DRY EXHORTERS WORLD OVER TALK TO 20,000,000

Day Observed in Pulpits and Sunday Schools.

Approximately 20,000,000 members of Sunday schools of all denominations in the United States and Canada were instructed yesterday in the principles of total abstinence.

It was world's temperance Sunday, and the international council of religious education, an organization formed by the union of the International Sunday School association and the council of denominational organizations, the Woman's Christian Temperance union, with its Loyal Temperance Leagues, and other dry organizations, made the most of the day to strengthen temperance sentiment. Chicago dry leaders and many ministers also used the occasion in campaigning for dry issues in the coming elections.

Warns on Overconfidence.
Dr. Charles Scanlon, general secretary of the Presbyterian board of temperance and moral welfare, issued a statement in behalf of the 10,000 Presbyterian churches, which, he said, would observe the day.

Dr. Scanlon warned the temperance forces not to be overconfident, nor dream that prohibition is safe beyond all possible reaction.

"Prohibition sentiment is gaining ground at home and abroad," he said, "but it is equally true that the opposition is making a most determined effort to break down the prohibitory law and bring it into disfavor."

Among Chicago pastors who gave the morning service over to discussion of prohibition was the Rev. Walter H. North, pastor of North Shore Baptist church, Leland and Racine avenues.

Results of 100 Years' Work.
"Prohibition of the liquor traffic is the result of a hundred years of agitation," he said. "For two generations the children have been instructed in the Sunday schools as they are today in this world's temperance Sunday. The men and women who voted the saloons out are those who were Sunday school and day school pupils a few years ago."

Dr. North singled out Anton Cermak as one of the candidates who ought to be defeated if the eighteenth amendment was to be enforced.

MURDER BY MAD WOMAN; SUICIDE, HAVRE VERDICT

Romantic Past of Rector Recalled by Parish.

ton's room in a hotel and found the woman in a state of hysteria.

The rector already was there, attempting to soothe her, she testified.

Rector's Body Sent to New York.

Funeral services were conducted for the rector Saturday afternoon in the church he built and in which he filled the pulpit, and the body, accompanied by Mrs. Christler, was entombed for their former home at Auburn, N. Y., on an early morning train. Funeral services will be held for Mrs. Carleton on Monday at Helena, whether her mother, Mrs. J. H. Fyfe, has taken her daughter's body.

Have today was recovering from the shock of the double tragedy and reminding over the spectacular career of the Rev. Mr. Christler. It was recalled that his defiance of the conventions and his contempt for the orthodox precedents which usually sway the mental processes of the minister were largely responsible for his becoming a figure nationally known.

It was his boast that his conception of true democracy permitted him, in the days before prohibition, to enter bars and drink with the boys. Photographs showing the rector standing on a bar in a New York City saloon, holding aloft a glass, once found their way back to Montana.

Novelist Gave Him Title.

Stewart Edward White, the novelist, adapted the rector to a character in a western story and gave him the title of "Bishop of All Outdoors." His brilliant mind and tongue, coupled with a charm of manner and rare self assurance added to his prestige. It was this vivid personality that about three years ago met the romantic beauty, Mrs. Margaret Carleton. A close friendship sprang up between the Christler and Carleton families when Mr. and Mrs. Carleton moved to Havre from Helena, where Mrs. Carleton several years before had divorced her first husband, Charles Lota, as a consequence of an affair with a minister there. Soon after his arrival in Havre, Carleton was made district judge by appointment.

Long walks into the country became a common pastime with the rector and Judge Carleton's diminutive wife. She was only 5 feet tall and considered one of the most beautiful women in the northwest.

Wins Another Sobriquet.

Gossip began to link their names, and a complaint was filed with Bishop Frederic Faber of the Montana diocese, as an aftermath of an incident in the hills of which two women parishioners claimed to have knowledge. Presently to the title of "Bishop of All Outdoors" was added "The Shepherd of the Hills."

Comment upon their friendship continued until an investigation was made by the bishop. The rector was exonerated. Parishioners said that when the stenographer who took down the testimony at the hearing typed the record she found two pages of vital testimony unaccountably missing.

Despite the exoneration, the "bishop's" relations with Mrs. Carleton continued to keep the village tongues a-wag, and St. Mark's congregation began to diminish. The rector's study in the church became a trysting place and there is complete proof of their meetings in other cities.

Clings to a Buddy Past.

Havre is a city that still clings to the free and easy ways of the open range. The demimonde rubs elbows on the streets with the respectable housewife, and each accepts the other as a definite type in the scheme of things. No effort is made to muffle the click of chips on the green topped tables.

Some years ago the late James J. Hill threatened to move his railroad terminal to another location if the town was not cleaned up and at his instance a reform mayor was elected.

This administration substituted a substance of order for the former laxity, but the populace made certain a return to the old ways by giving the mayor a crushing defeat when he stood for reelection.

In recent years, the town has been the scene of a horde of whisky runners who ply between Montana and Canada.

A Man For All Men.

Here it was that the Rev. Mr. Christler, fifteen years ago, entered upon his labors with the enthusiasm of his then 31 years and the vigor that typified the man. No better proof of his democracy than his methods in erecting St. Mark's church. Contributions from the bar, the game table, the dump, the dive, and the den bought concrete and frame work and shingles for the house of worship, though all was not always easy sailing with the rector.

However freely he may have mingled with his cosmopolitan parish, the rector maintained the same independence of thought and speech with each segment of his flock. More than once his beratings muffled the easier living portion of the populace and the permanency of his spiritual leadership was as frequently menaced by outspoken persons of the underworld.

On occasion, bartenders, gamblers, and dance hall girls have left off in the midst of an evening's gaiety to ponder, over their drinks and cigarettes, the advisability of staying with the rector or going over to another denomination.

But His Popularity Spread.

These mutinies the rector met with characteristic belligerence, and usually the upshot of the protest was an increased loyalty to the "Bishop of All Outdoors."

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton separated early in 1921 and soon thereafter, after having been coached by the rector, Mrs. Carleton entered chautauqua work. She returned from this work a few days before the double shooting.

"French ships are a part of the territory of France," he said, "and I believe that you properly claim your carriers are part of the United States wherever they may be."

His only comment on European debts was: "France will pay, for France always pays her debts."

RIGHT OF PUPS IN DOG'S INCOME BEFORE COURT

The right of a dog and her two puppies to the income from the $15,000 estate left by the late Mrs. Margaret Howard, 2037 Cheltenham place, will be tested in Probate court before Judge Henry Horner today.

At present the dogs are in the care of their guardian, Mrs. Carrie Bashaw, 7815 Muskegon avenue. Mrs. Bashaw petitions that she be paid $15 monthly for the care of her three canine wards. According to the terms of Mrs. Howard's will, the income is left to the dogs for life, but will not pass to their heirs or assigns, if the dogs have any, but to the Arkansas Children's Home at Little Rock.

The new hearing is on a petition asking that the relative of Mrs. Howard produce the original of the unusual will in favor of the dogs.

WAR GRAFTERS TO BE PUNISHED, DAUGHERTY SAYS

Public Must Be Patient Until Cases Are Ready.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Attorney General Daugherty declared today that the government purpose to "prosecute to the limit every case of the war transactions in which dishonesty has been practiced." He stated that the government is making sure of its evidence upon which to take the war crooks into court.

The attorney general made his announcement when there had been presented to him memoranda from the hands of the various units of the war transaction section of the department indicating that preliminary investigations into 425 war time contracts had disclosed evidence upon which the government must take action.

Must See to Regain Money.

In every one of these 425 cases, it was officially declared, either civil or criminal suits must be brought by the government, and in many cases both will be necessary if the government is to recover even a part of the fabulous sums paid out as a result of fraudulent or improperly executed contracts.

The cases of "questionable transactions," as the department of justice refers to them, are now being worked up by special attorneys attached to the war transactions section and by United States attorneys in various parts of the country.

The majority of them, approximately 250 cases, were said to have originated in the war department, the navy department transferred to the department of justice early in 1919, the shipping board $9, and something like 25 cases came from miscellaneous federal agencies and bureaus which functioned during the war.

Says None Will Escape.

"Legal civil action will be taken every case in which it has been discovered that fraud, collusion, or dishonesty was practiced," said the attorney general. "While great numbers of cases indicate on their face the worst kind of fraud and thievery, the government cannot, of course, go to court until it has established absolutely on the face of records in its possession that its case will stand the test. The government must be fair to itself, and fair even to those whom it would brand as crooks and scoundrels, yet, every single individual, firm, or corporation involved in the cases now in the possession of the department, must satisfy the government's claims to the last penny."

A memorandum to Mr. Daugherty from the advisory council, signed by judges Charles Kerr and T. M. Bligh, and former Senator Thomas states: "The advisory council feels it has, in the short time since it was organized, pushed the work, over which it has had supervision, with all possible celerity."

"In addition to this work we have been in constant consultation with the district attorneys having in charge a large number of important cases, civil and criminal, and as a result of our joint endeavors quite a number of suits, involving many millions of dollars, have been instituted in various jurisdictions."

Women welcomed the first electric iron because it spelled freedom from the tiring heat of the kitchen stove. But this new relief was not complete. The handles of ordinary electric irons become hot.

Though some women may not realize it, this slowly penetrating heat tires out the muscles. The iron seems heavier. Ironing is made unnecessarily hard.

CHEER MASTERS
ISSUE ELECTION
SONGS FOR NOV. 7Statements Made by Big Party Leaders.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican national committee, who has been taking an active part in the congressional campaign ending with the election a week from Tuesday, declared today that the most important issue before the voters is "public economy."

Asserting that the "reduction of public expenditures is an issue in practically every state, county and municipality throughout the country," the national chairman declared the present Republican congress and that which preceded it, had made enviable records for economy, records which "have never been equaled," and which he believes should appeal to the public in the approaching election.

Gives Comparison in Figures.
"The present congress," said Mr. Adams, "cut the appropriations for the current year over a billion dollars under what they were for the year ending June 30, 1921, and over a third of a billion dollars under what they were for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1922. The total appropriations for this congress for the current fiscal year were over 7 per cent less than the estimates submitted to it by the budget bureau."

Hull Sees Democratic Sweep.
Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic national committee, declared tonight in "a forecast of the senatorial and congressional elections," that "a Democratic victory is now assured at the elections Nov. 7."

"The only doubt remaining," "Chairman Hull's statement added, "is the extent of the victory. Practically every section of the United States will contribute a share of that victory and every class of voter will be largely represented among the victors."

Referring to reports of alleged apathy among voters, Mr. Hull asserted this was done "due to the fact that the great mass of voters have already made up their minds definitely and finally," and had decided "to rebuke the Republican party for its failure to keep its election promises."

His fiancée, Miss Fanny Morton, 3105 August street, wearing a fur coat valued at $1,000 and $2,000 worth of jewelry, escaped.

Three men also robbed Arthur Kleinman, 810 Lakeside place, and his wife of $84, a watch and three rings, valued at $2,700, afterwards driving away in the Kleinman's car. It was found later at Wilson avenue and Broadway. Fourteen dollars and a diamond ring were secured when five men held up Raymond Keegan, 4105 Gladys avenue, and Miss Loretta Zwickel, 4416 Leland avenue.

G. O. P. CHAIN OF
FEATS LINK U. S.
TO PROSPERITY

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Senator Medill McCormick (Ill.), chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, in a statement issued here tonight on the eve of the last week in the congressional campaign, declared that the people of the country "in good conscience and good sense, will not block the economic recovery of America by voting to return the Democrats to power."

The current of opinion throughout the country supports the Republican candidates," Senator McCormick said. "We have made our campaign upon the record of achievement. The people recognize that under the Republican government and the annual total of federal taxation each have been reduced by a billion dollars."

National Debt Slashed.
"We have reduced the national debt by a billion dollars since Warren G. Harding was inaugurated. Liberty bonds, which sold at 84 per cent, have touched par."

"We owe to the emergency agricultural credits act the relief which has not only reduced interest rates but which has saved hundreds of banks, thousands of cattle men, and tens of thousands of farmers from going to the wall."

"There were 5,000,000 idle men in this country when Woodrow Wilson surrendered the reins of office. Now every man earnest to find employment can get a job."

Made United States Prosperous.

"America alone among the countries of the world is prosperous. The Republican administration and the Republican congress, which together have drawn the country out from the morass of depression, took steps to make sure that it would not fall again into the unemployment and industrial stagnation from which the European nations have been unable to lift themselves."

"Therefore, we wrote the tariff act; it is not without faults. It was written in the face of the measurable difficulties created by the fluctuating European values, but written in the knowledge that thousands of skilled workers in Europe are paid less than $5 a week, and that whereas, according to official reports, European wages have been reduced by an average of 30 per cent during the last six months, American wages have been reduced in a sum not to exceed 5 per cent, since the signing of the armistice, according to Mr. Samuel Gompers."

BROTHERS SEIZED
ON CHINESE BANK
FORGING CHARGE

New York, Oct. 29.—Henry H. Werblow, acting manager of the Peking China, branch of the Asia Banking corporation, and his brother, Robert W., former New York bank employee, were today held in default of $25,000 bail each after their arrest yesterday on charges of grand larceny in connection with international banking frauds amounting to $120,000. They will be given a hearing tomorrow.

Arrest of the Werblows exposed a unique scheme by which it was charged a third conspirator in London, known as Max Elliott, obtained funds on forged bank transfers from China. Strength to Elliott's financial standing was given by the sending at first of a genuine transfer, it was said, while subsequent orders were forged.

The spurious transfers were sent to the London office of the Guarantee Trust company of New York, which announced in a statement that $110,000 of the funds secured falsely had been recovered.

Henry Werblow, alleged principal in the scheme, was in ignorance of the charges against him until he reached New York yesterday after a 10,000 mile trip. Authorities led him to believe that he had been recalled for a business conference because of difficulties attached to extradition should his arrest have been made in China.

Senator Reed Jokes With His Political Opponent

Caruthersville, Mo., Oct. 29.—United States Senator James A. Reed, a candidate for re-election, and his Republican opponent, Reginald R. Brewster, of Kansas City, met at Hayti, a small town northwest of here, yesterday for the first time since the beginning of the campaign, which is to be decided November 7.

Charges such as "hypocrite, faker, Dickey's Rooster, etc.," that have been made by the two candidates in the campaign speeches were apparently forgotten, when Senator Reed approached Mr. Brewster for a hearty handshake.

"Hello, Brewster," said Mr. Reed, and "hello, Senator," came back Mr. Brewster's reply. "How's your voice?" added Mr. Brewster. "As good as a brass band," replied the senator and the two separated.

WEALTHY WOMAN
KILLS SELF IN OKLAHOMA JAIL

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Agnes C. Gessell, formerly a highly successful business woman, who accumulated a fortune estimated at more than $250,000 here, shot and mortally wounded herself this afternoon while an inmate of the women's ward in the county jail. She died tonight.

Held on a charge of insanity preferred by her mother, Mrs. E. S. Chamberlain, Mrs. Gessell, in a fit of despondency, jerked an automatic pistol from her bosom, placed the muzzle against her left side, and fired.

Mrs. Gessell was taken in custody by the sheriff when her mother reported that "her mind was impaired." The county lunacy commission was scheduled to hear the case Monday.

Mrs. Gessell is said to have been possessed of keen judgment in the handling of oil leases, and it was in this way that she accumulated a good sized fortune.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then—just to keep them fit. He had 30c. OLIVE TABLET CO., Columbus, Ohio

WOMEN WANT AN EQUALITY THAT IS AN EQUALITY

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(Special.)—A series of "best laws" dealing with all women's subjects, including marriage, wives' property rights, jury service, and women in industry is now being drafted by the legislative department of the National Woman's party for presentation to all state legislatures.

These laws, taken from actual laws now in force in one or more states, will be presented to the party conference of state and national officers in Washington on Nov. 11 and 12.

With Go to Each State.

If endorsed, the state branches of the party will be authorized to campaign for their passage at the next meeting of state legislatures.

Miss Maud Younger, legislative chairman of the Woman's party, in announcing this new proposal, said: "The purpose of the new plan is to make our campaign not only a negative one, removing discriminations against women from our laws, but also a positive one, substituting the highest form of equality."

For instance, one of the best laws in the country on illegitimacy is that of North Dakota, where illegitimacy has been abolished.

Louisiana Law Is Cited.

"One of the best laws on 'support' is that of Louisiana, where the law states that husband and wife pledge to each other mutual fidelity, aid, and assistance."

"One of the best laws on alimony is that of Ohio, where husband or wife may receive alimony from the other."

"One of the best laws on dower and curtesy is in Virginia, where each sex made equal. In other states there are good inheritance laws, good guardianship laws, good laws as to jury service, and equal protection for men and women workers."

U. S. and Canada to Confer on Hurrying Up the Mails

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—A new postal convention between the United States and Canada, to facilitate mail service, will be considered at a conference at Ottawa some time in December. Postmaster General Work announced today that because of the importance of the deliberations, arrangements for which have been under negotiation for a year, he would take part personally, accompanied by a number of postoffice department officials.

ARRANGE DENTAL TREATMENT FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Dentists' assertions that not less than 70 per cent of children between the ages of 8 and 14 years have defective teeth are borne out by the results of physical examinations of the school children of Chicago. Health officers found that out of 141,811 children examined $8,342 had defective teeth and oral conditions so serious as to call for immediate treatment.

In view of these conditions the commissioner of health, through the cooperation of Dr. Arthur D. Black, dean of the Northwestern Dental college, has made arrangements by which certain groups of school children of Chicago will be given treatment at that institution.

As at present planned, there will be facilities for taking care of at least twenty children daily, and the service will be given for a nominal charge of from 15 to 25 cents for those able to pay.

"I am married," she said, "wish me good luck. We are going to live in Pennsylvania." The parents, who have enlisted the help of detectives, can give no information as to the man she has run away with.

OKLAHOMA GAS COMPANY SUED FOR $4,065,782

Bartlesville, Okla., Oct. 29.—Suit for damages of $4,065,782 was filed against the Owen Osage Oil and Gas company in District court yesterday by the Empire Natural Gas company and the Kansas Natural Gas company.

The plaintiff companies allege that the Owen Osage company agreed to supply to them gas produced by the Owen lease, comprising 165,760 acres in Osage county, Oklahoma. The petition charges that the Owen Osage Oil and Gas company arbitrarily disregarded this agreement and entered into contracts with industrial consumers for large quantities of gas, thus diverting it from domestic use of a million persons in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Missouri served by the plaintiff companies.

Couple Shout to World That They Are Married

Screams and other cries was the method used by Frank Kalina, 28, 2651 South Spaulding avenue, and his wife, Jennie, 21, to let the world know they had been married. The yells of the wedding party, near Lawndale avenue and 26th street, early yesterday aroused residents, who notified the police. When a patrol wagon arrived, Policeman John Swanson had seized the bridegroom and bride and they were taken to the station. "They acted like crazy people," said Swanson. They were quieted and released.

AS TO JUDGE RIGHEIMER.

In the campaign at which Judge Righeimer last offered himself for the suffrages of his fellow citizens he declared on the stump that if elected he would see to it that any proposition Mayor Thompson put forth would get a fair count. He declared it with meaning and emphasis and often.

Theoretically we assumed that Mr. Righeimer was in duty bound to see that every proposition and every candidate should get a fair count. We do not recall that he went that far. At a roaring city hall rally Mr. Righeimer's emphasis on what he would do on behalf of city hall propositions at the polls seemed worthy of the citizens' second thoughts. Why was it necessary for a city hall candidate to pledge a "fair" count to the city hall?

However, Mr. Righeimer, with the aid of the Lundin-Thompson machine, then confident and all powerful, was elevated to the directorship of our election machinery. As county judge he appointed the board of election commissioners, selected or approved the 12,000 judges and clerks of election, designated the polling places; in short, wielded the powers of one of the most powerful political offices in our local system.

Meanwhile the Lundin-Thompson organization began to show strain. Its methods and accomplishments were beginning to be revealed; in fact, could no longer be hid from either the eye or the nose. Certain captains of the city hall, or allies, broke away. Lundin-Thompson technique was too rank. The rocks were looming ahead. But Judge Righeimer was not numbered among the enlightened, so far as we can tell. We now find him, in seeking reelection, promising a square deal to all. Thompson propositions are not emphasized, for Thompson stick has suffered a sad decline and is still going down.

But while Judge Righeimer's later form of pledge is to be preferred, citizens with a memory will not find it easy to forget the earlier inclinations of Mr. Righeimer and the interesting fact that, so far as our cars carry, we have not heard him express himself publicly as to any change in his affiliations with the city hall. On the other hand, the Democrats are charging that Judge Righeimer's continued directorship of the election machinery would have much to do with the city hall's chances of surviving the gathering storm of public disgust and indignation.

NO STANDEES IN THE MOTORBUSSES.

We have been expecting an announcement from Mr. John Hertz on the subject of standees in the new motor bus system. It hasn't arrived yet, but we have no doubt it will.

There are no standees, no strap-hangers in the New York busses, and we are sure Mr. Hertz is going to put his service on as high a level or higher than that of New York.

"Stick 'em in" is the motto of our traction lines. Perhaps it pays or has paid up to the present time. We think Mr. Hertz wants to do a public service and looks farther than the end of a traction manager's nose. If he does not adopt the no-strap-hanger rule the pressure will be for the newest buses to carry the most victims. All the traffic will bear may be a good rule if you can get away with it, but it would not mean real prosperity for the motor bus corporation, because we don't think it could get away with it.

We look to Mr. Hertz to repeat in his new field of public service by establishing a new standard of decency and comfort in urban transportation.

STRENGTHEN THE VOLSTEAD ACT.

An Associated Press dispatch from Smyrna informs us that the Turkish press gives prominence to the case of an Englishman who received thirty lashes under the Turkish law for having alcoholic beverages in his possession.

Our brown brother in prohibition offers us an example which should be noted by the prohibition leaders for action at the next congress. The deplorable evasions of the Volstead act are doubtless the fault of the extraordinary leniency and, as you might say, latitudinarianism of our statute. Guilt has flourished and the law has been dodged if not defied because we lack the moral fervor of the Turk.

We propose, therefore, an amendment of the Volstead act providing that any one found with alcoholic beverages in his possession shall be flogged. Thirty lashes seems a bit stiff, but probably the Englishman's stock was Scotch and called for a corresponding rigor in the penalty. We suggest a lighter punishment for home brew if the alcoholic content is not too immoral, say five lashes for anything under 5 per cent and two lashes for every per cent above. Home-made wine would call for a severer application of rawhide, and possession of the so-called hard liquor, gin, whiskey, rum, would call for the maximum.

We think, however, some consideration should be given to the fact that women are of a weaker physical constitution and for offending housewives we favor nothing more severe than the ducking stroke; say, one ducking for beer, two for light wines, three for more serious combinations of alcohol. The water should be also heated in winter time in northern climates.

MORE SEX MURDERS.

Another day's news adds the murder of an Episcopal rector of Montana by a woman of his parish, and the confession of a Chicago woman to an attempt to poison her husband, to the current list of sex murders. Almost every day's news lengthens that list. How long will it be allowed to grow before sentimental man realizes the danger to society and checks it suddenly and effectively at the end of a rope?

Glance over a recently published list of such murders and the farcical trials and verdicts which have followed them. One of the most flagrant was in the case of Mrs. Marie F. "Peggy" Beal in Kansas City. Mrs. Beal was a divorcee, reputed to be the mother of two illegitimate children. She shot and killed a man "to protect others of her sex" against him after she had learned that she was about the fifth in his list of conquests. The fact that he did not rank first in her own list made no difference to the jury. They freed her after two hours' deliberation and the courtroom cheered, thereby approving a system which would allow to every woman the privilege of taking human life without trial.

In New Jersey we have the now notorious Hall-Mills case, the double murder of an indigent pastor and his choir singing, middle aged but passionately sweetheart, in circumstances which indicate that a woman prompted the deed if she did not actually perform it. There has been no trial there yet, but if a woman is brought to trial precedent indicates that she will have better than nine chances out of ten of being freed amid applause.

If there is any doubt that a New Jersey jury will take such a course it may be removed by recalling last week's court action at Hackensack when a jury composed of six men and six women acquitted two men and a woman of the murder of a motion picture actor, largely, the record indicates, because the victim had said all women were bad and the wife of one of the defendants was a bum. What could six chivalrous jurors, acting with six women who were thus defamed, do in a case like that except to endorse the slaying by acquitting the killer?

In Philadelphia they are trying a woman on the charge of having murdered her husband and his stenographer because she found them together and believed their relations improper. She broke into scenes when a witness identified her husband's spectacles. So tender-hearted—she undoubtedly said and probably will go free. One more public endorsement of the American policy of allowing women to constitute themselves police, courts, and executioners, will be recorded if precedent is any criterion.

Los Angeles, where murder has outdone movies and even climate as a source of publicity, is trying a woman who beat another woman to death with a hammer and then went home and told her husband she had killed his "sweetie." She will plead insanity—and in all probability get away with it. Also in Los Angeles a fifth jury is now hearing the evidence concerning the slaying of J. Belmont Kennedy, alleged to have been murdered by Arthur C. Burch to satisfy the jealousy and pique of Madelyn Obenchain.

In Fresno, Cal., a man is released by a coroner's jury after beating his wife to death on the plea that he had found her with another man and she had taunted him.

And now we have the mysterious murder of a Montana clergyman by a woman and the confession of a Chicago woman that she tried to poison her husband "because she was tired of the way he was fooling around with other women."

In the last analysis they all come down to that. Women murder because they want to get rid of a man or a woman who has disturbed self-esteem and personal desires. For that, on the appeal of sex, sentiment, sob, and slush they are released by juries. This is indorsed the taking of law into private hands for personal reasons. If there is a shred of intelligence in this country that should stop.

Editorial of the Day

[Free translation from Abendpost.]

Early in October, before the cold season sets in, national and state authorities make an effort to impress the public with the annual losses occasioned to property and human life from fires. In no other country is this warning more appropriate than in ours. Anyone who will travel for hours in northern Wisconsin for instance, through a burnt forest, will be frightened at the extent of such damage, which is often to be traced to a burning match carelessly thrown away. But in our towns and cities conditions are not any better. A walk in a poorer district in Chicago will reveal an amazing mass of combustible matter around houses, courts, streets and alleys. Still all this accumulation of rags, scraps of paper, wood and miscellaneous refuse, dangerous as it is, is not as bad as the human heedlessness and indifference in handling fire and matches. Time and again have cigarettes, thrown down from the elevated road, burned a hole in the hat or suit of a person in the street below. In factories a little more care is being taken now; there a fire will often lead to a loss through inability to execute orders, even if the direct loss is covered by insurance.

The annual celebration of a fire prevention day, as well as the periodical proclamations of heads of state and municipal governments, have not, it seems, helped much so far. A good example set by the public authorities in keeping public places cleaner might effect more. To reduce our annual fire bill will surely take unremitting, long continued efforts, and especially a systematic education of young people.

NIX, WINIFRED, THAT'S ANDY GUMP'S STUFF!

[From yesterday's Reverend Herx.]
Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck, candidate for congress, speaking before the presidents and officers of the Illinois Women's club Saturday, advocated endorsement of the proposed new state constitution because of some of its features and urged its condemnation for others.

IT LOOKS PINK ON OUR MAP.
R. H. L.: On the map it looks like a stretch of arid alkali soil, devoid of vegetation and beauty. But I ask you, did you ever see the sun rise over those brown hills to cast its rays on the mountain streams, making the waters sparkle, and on the majestic snow-capped peaks of the granite mountains below which men are digging for gold? It casts shadows behind the innumerable stately pines which grace the slopes of the purple hills on the west and lathers the valley in its autumnal grandeur. Those speckled rainbow trout are biting fine in the clear, cold streams, the beavers are at work on their dams, and steamers are chugging along the river. As the sun completes its arc across the sky and dusk descends, the valley is cloaked in a silence broken only by the wail of a coyote out in the sagebrush of the hills. Another day has passed in OREGON.

FALLING DOWN, FALLING DOWN.

R. H. L.: One-to-one! A decision place. It was neck and neck—meal ticket and I, honors were easy at Handspan on a Northern county, Blackstone to the Gun Tower—one point to win. At this critical stage, meal ticket drags me to the British Consulate—poor unwitting me—unwitting indeed until I had piped—Sir Sid himself, or at any rate his avatar, and victory over me had been claimed by just old Walrus. They gave me the keys, but I called it a foul.

HANK! BALANCE THIS RIGHT IN THE CENTER.

PROOF.
I searched my mirror, trembling, lest
Great signs of age appear,
For on the "L" a man arose,
And, smiling, said, "Sit here!"

The search was reassuring, so
I didn't mind the man,
Until I tried to ventilate
An I. C. caravan.

TO PARTLY STIR UP THE ANTI-SPLITTERS.
Dear R. H. L.: Approve of split infinitives, why should any one want "to partly conceal the alley"? If the alley is to be concealed at all, it had better be completely hidden, in which case no adverb is necessary. The hedge was planted to conceal the alley. However, a brick wall would prove more satisfactory we feel sure, for undoubtedly the hedge would not grow. Let us conceal the alley by all means, but if the infinitive is to be split, why must it be done to conceal the alley? M. K.

How to Keep Well.

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a statement, addressed to the editor, is desired, Dr. Evans will endeavor to describe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

[Copyright, 1932, by Dr. W. A. Evans.]

THE JOB AT HAND.
ALTHOUGH this service was begun more than eleven years ago, I deem it well again to state the purpose, plan and method. A statement of this kind is made about every so often.

Letters accumulated by stamp and addressed envelopes are answered within two days after being received at the central office.

There are several questions that cannot be answered for one reason or another. In replying to those questions, the reason they cannot be answered is stated.

Many of the questions are plainly written by people who want a correspondence diagnosis or correspondence treatment. A correspondence diagnosis is nothing more than a guess based upon a very fragmentary knowledge of the facts and is therefore liable to mislead and do more harm than good.

Correspondence treatment is also hazardous. The chances are at least five to one that such treatment would be either harmful or harmless, but at the same time not helpful.

In writing to doctors we are only asking questions as to diagnosis and treatment in a general way.

However, we have a moderate number of formulas for simple disorders, such as colds, coughs, and constipation, and of domestic medication. Such of these as we have are furnished to those who write for them.

Subjects that are frequently asked about are: Hay fever, colds, and skin eruptions. In some instances, with a simple leaflet. In some instances, articles first appearing in the column are reprinted in booklets or leaflets.

In some instances, we supply leaflets that have been placed in our hands by government bodies and by private societies. These pamphlets, leaflets and booklets are sent upon request, when postage is supplied.

In one or two instances we buy pamphlets from societies, and, in that case, they are supplied on payment of the price we pay, plus the postage.

Letters without stamps for postage, without address or without return address, are not answered by mail for obvious reasons.

If the questions asked are thought to be of fairly general interest, these letters are answered in the column. Only a small part of the letters sent anonymously or without addresses can be used. No letter is made public until the name and address have been deleted.

No letters, names or addresses are kept in the office or supplied to any one for any purpose.

In order that correspondents sending such letters to the general interest, they may be certain that the letter is not kept, we return the letter with this reply.

Letters are chosen for public letters promptly, because the questions are thought to be of general interest, and also because the method of stating the question is satisfactory.

SAND ON THE SIDEWALK.
Chicago, Oct. 27.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise me the sand which was washed down out of the empty lot on Sheridan road to the sidewalk on Cornelia avenue between Pine Grove and the road? NO REDRESS ON RAFFLE.
Chicago, Oct. 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a number of persons get redress from an athletic club which refuses to set a date for a raffle which was held on some time ago? Are these raffles legal? They sold tickets for it and the winner was to get $50. Who would one sue for this? A. C. U.

Since the raffle is in effect a gambling venture, we are of the opinion that none of the parties thereto have any legal remedy. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PENSIONED OFFICER'S DEBT.
Chicago, Oct. 27.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me if I can collect a bill or a loan such as a grocery bill or a cash loan from a pensioned police officer who is not employed but depends on his pension as his only support. J. A. T.

MEMORY TESTS.
Where do we find the loftiest church towers in the world? On the cathedral in Cologne, Germany. The two on the west front are 512 feet high.

2. What is a "George"? A jeweled flow of the George playing the dragon. It is only worn by knights of the garter. The chain is about the shoulders and the jewel is suspended on the breast.

3. What is the "smoke" from volcanoes made of? The greatest part of it is steam and finely powdered glass or pumice. Among the other names are sulphur, hydrochloric acid, hydrofluoric acid, and ammoniac.

4. Who wrote "Vanity Fair"? William Makepeace Thackeray.

5. Does the United States pay full face value for postal money orders issued in Canada and payable in the United States? They are payable at full face value. No deduction is made for exchange.

question will make an appeal or it lends itself to an answer which will register. The articles are limited to about 500 words. As a rule, that amount of space suffices for the presentation of some phase of a subject, not of a subject in its entirety. An effort is made to make the matter readable. Obviously, however, if the subject is too technical, the subject chosen relate mostly to diseases, because that is what people are mostly interested in. Some articles are for the purpose of interpreting technical medical information to the public.

Many are on personal hygiene questions. These cover mental hygiene and mouth hygiene, as well as the more accepted phases of personal hygiene.

Some deal with public health, in this way we include eugenics and demography.

Some effort is made to make the articles timely.

HAY FEVER COMPLICATIONS.
H. G. B. writes: "Have you ever heard of a case of hay fever accompanied by a skin eruption?"

"This is so in my case, and the hay fever does not limit itself to the August season, but comes on at any time of the year, preceding always an outbreaking on my face."

REPLY.
The answer to your question is: Hay fever and skin eruptions are first cousins and can be present in the same case.

I suspect that you have some form of probo pneumonia that is not true hay fever but is a close kinsman.

WORMS IN BOWELS.
M. A. writes: "What is the cause and a remedy for plums?"

"Is it very serious for one to have them, and do they bring on other diseases, and if so, what?"

REPLY.
Pinworms are annoying, but not dangerous. They do not bring on other diseases. The worms live in the lower part of the lower bowel. The eggs are swallowed with the food, and the worm hatches and takes the blood from the lining of the bowels.

This blood is the cause of the disease. The blood is given to the worm in the form of a pinworm. Injections of strong salt brine or of quinine, or of quinine and salicylic acid, are used to destroy all the worms. Any left behind are liable to beget more.

Before the medicated enema is used a cleansing enema should be employed. In addition sometimes worm medicine is given internally as an aid.

LAUNDRY ON BATH.
A. E. M. writes: "What will turn bright silver very dark after being brought in a man's pocket for a day?"

"Is it owing to the system?"

REPLY.
It may be due to oxidation. The action of sulphur gas has the same effect. The phenomenon noticed does not mean that the silver is being oxidized.

It may mean that your pocket lining needs laundering.

Underlining of the skin is indicated in some cases.

STREET BLOCKED.
Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—I am writing to find out just how long the Hennrich hospital on the corner of Oak and La Salle streets is going to be permitted to keep the sidewalk closed up on the Oak street side. It has been closed at least three weeks. People using that side are compelled to walk out in the mud.

J. R. J.
The sidewalk on Oak street at the Hennrich hospital is barricaded as a measure of public safety. The north wall is in a very bad shape, crumbling and falling and is liable to be taken to oblige accidents.

THOMAS H. BYRNE, Superintendent of Streets.

OVERTIME PAY.
Chicago, Oct. 25.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man has worked for the city of Chicago and was asked to work overtime with the understanding that he would receive payment for this overtime. He has not received his overtime wages. 1. Can he "collect" this money? 2. If so, should he apply in the department in which he worked? 3. Will it be necessary to employ a lawyer? E. H.

1. Yes.
2 and 3. Place the claim in the hands of an attorney. Statute authorizes recovery of attorney fees on wage claims.

WHY NOT ENFORCE PARKING?

Chicago, Oct. 25.—On page 5 of today's issue of The Chicago Tribune I notice a picture showing conditions under which automobiles violate the city ordinance against parking cars under fire escapes.

As indicating other instances in which loop policemen willfully permit violation of traffic regulations and in many cases doubtless effect to "clients." I submit the following:

(a) Recently I requested permission of a policeman to park my car on Washington at 9:15 a. m. in order to make a twenty minute visit in a nearby building; he said a car may not be parked before 10 o'clock. At that very moment there were two or three cars parked within fifty feet of me.

(b) On another occasion I requested a traffic policeman near the Masonic temple to permit me to park my car at 6:15 p. m.; he said he could not permit it, although at that time ten or twelve cars were in the alley back of the temple and many of them had been there all day. A few cars were parked in the street.

MINERS EXPLAIN THEIR VIEWS OF INQUIRY ON FUEL

Absentee Ownership One of Evils Hit.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—A committee representing the United Mine Workers of America has filed with the United States coal commission investigating the industry a report containing comment and suggestions. The document made public today is signed by Ellis Searles, editor of the union's magazine, John Moore, its legislative representative, and Thomas Kennedy, a Pennsylvania district president of the organization, and seeks to lay before the commission the union's side of how it should conduct its investigation and the objectives to be attained. Absentee ownership of coal mining areas, the intrusion of profit taking middlemen in marketing, regulation of coal production and the survey of transportation and storage facilities available for coal distribution, the report emphasized should be investigated by the commission. On a number of subjects about which the commission asked views the committee withheld comment, asking further time for study, but gave assurance that all available information would be presented when called for.

Absentee Ownership Scored.
The commission, through its own request, should investigate the extent to which absentee ownership prevails in the coal industry," the report said. "We believe this is an evil that has much to do with the strained relations and unfortunate conditions which exist in the industry. We believe that the commission should ascertain why it is that the price of coal to the domestic consumer is always higher than the price to railroads and other large purchasers. We believe this line could be developed if the commission would inquire into railroad contracts and the methods by which such contracts are made. "The commission should ascertain the actual mine cost of production and compare that cost with the price which the consumer pays and find out who gets the money represented by these two figures."

Blamed for Heavy Charges.
"Irregularity of production, waste of coal in mining operation and transportation methods, it was declared, put very heavy charges against coal production and deserve attention. "We believe figures show there should be a much greater supply of coal in the country," the report said with reference to transportation, "and the commission should ascertain the facts and make such recommendations as will remedy this condition." The committee declared the commission should not hesitate to make recommendations affecting the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission over coal freight rates if found to be necessary.

British Lose 11 Out of 17 Events in Athletic Meet
As a recent British amateur athletic meeting it is said that eleven out of seventeen championships were won by foreigners. Among the winners of first, second, and third places were Norwegians, Swedes, Estonians, Swedes, a Frenchman, and an Italian. The result may be due in part to the ravages of war, although by this time there would be a good many competitors who were too young to take part in the war.

SOCIATION WILL VOTE ON CONSTITUTION.
Oct. 27.—I have read with interest in this morning's edition of the Chicago Tribune the suggestion that the Chicago Association hold a referendum in reference to a new constitution. On the day of October a letter was sent to the members of the association that a referendum would be held at the same time there was sent to the members of the association a copy of the constitution and the proposed amendments in parallel columns, also the constitution of the association. Later ballots will be sent to the members and they will be given an opportunity to express their views as to whether the proposed constitution should be adopted.

Money Tone Is Firmer.
Money continues to display its firmer tones, as is consistent with expanded trade activity.
The demand, incidental to the latter have caused the withdrawal of funds from securities and that this has been a leading factor in the decline of bond prices.
The reaction in the new treasury 4 1/4 per cent bonds to 99 is regarded as having been due to the retreat of the market for the new issue, and in the hope that the latter would sell quickly at a premium. An overextended speculative position is also thought to have been a factor in the week's decline in stocks.
Pronounced weakness in French and Belgian francs and in Italian lire, in Spain and in the Netherlands guilder, the German mark commanded considerable attention. France sold below 7 cents and lire below 4, prices which increased with some anxiety over the German position.

ROADS ORDERED TO EXPEDITE USE OF ALL BOX CARS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The car service division of the American Railway association, in an order just issued, instructed railroad companies in the northwest, central western, and southwestern districts to return at once box cars which are now on their lines but which belong to eastern roads. These cars are to be loaded and sent east as rapidly as possible.

The order follows a similar one issued early last week, by which roads situated east of Chicago, Peoria, and St. Louis were instructed to send west immediately all box cars belonging to western roads in order to enable the roads in the western agricultural states to meet the car shortage that exists in that part of the country, the box cars of the western carriers being built especially to transport grain.

Under the order just issued the western carriers are told to confine the loading of grain, flour, and other food products to box cars fit for that class of traffic and to discontinue using locally, in station to station service, box cars belonging to eastern roads. Such box cars are to be loaded and sent to home lines or to terminal markets, where they will become available for eastern loading of grain, flour, and other food products.

"A great many western line cars can be kept available for loading grain, flour, and food products on lines of eastern box cars east bound with grain and food products can be obtained in this manner by intensive supervision over distribution of box cars," the order said.

COLLIE DIES IN MISTAKEN EFFORT TO SAVE PUPPY

Three policemen, Sergeants Frank Gill and Charles Bennett and Patrolman Thomas Benn, found themselves at a loss when called to 4124 Sheridan road, the home of a family by the name of Siegel, early Saturday to deal with a collie dog, which, believed to have gone mad, had been shut up in a room.

Sergeant Gill tried at first to reach

Bess with his club through the transom of the door, but it was too short.

Unwilling to fire at the dog, for fear the bullets might damage some one else than the collie, he bethought himself of a baseball bat and fetched the biggest he could find. Even then he was helpless, for as fast as he struck the dog jumped aside, and after about fourteen attempts, he gave up.

Sergeant Bennett then suggested a fish hook baited with meat. But either Bess was not hungry or she suspected the hook, for she left the dangling steak severely alone and again matters were at a standstill.

Finally, Policeman Benn, an old soldier, decided to try his luck with a rope and, after one or two unsuccessful attempts, he succeeded in lassoing the collie, enabling the others to enter the room.

Then the cause of the trouble was found in the shape of a puppy that Bess had given birth to in the night.

For the moment Bess was forgotten and in a minute was loose again and attacking the policemen. But Sergeant Gill still had his baseball club and a few seconds later Bess lay dead, killed for her mistaken efforts to save her puppy.

ALLEN INSTRUCTS KANSAS OFFICERS TO BANISH KLAN

Coffeyville, Kan., Oct. 28.—Asserting that he had instructed Attorney General Richard J. Hopkins to bring action to expel from the state every official of the Ku Klux Klan, Gov. Henry J. Allen said that the Klan had "introduced into Kansas the greatest curse that can come to any civilized people."

The governor spoke within a few miles of the scene of the fogging of the mayor of Liberty, Kan., by a group of men.

"I am here to tell you very frankly that I have directed the attorney general to bring an action against the officials of this Klan and expel them from this state," Gov. Allen told his audience.

No charter in Kansas has ever been granted to the Ku Klux Klan, the chief executive stated, adding that the Klan's charter was granted at Atlanta, Ga., and that to make the organization legal in this state the sanction of the Kansas charter board was prerequisite.

VAMP QUEEN IS NABBED IN OHIO, PARTNER HERE

Accused of Auto Larceny and Embezzlement.

Known to the police as the "world's greatest vamp," Mrs. Ruth Moore, 24 years old, was arrested in Cleveland Saturday. At the same time Chicago police took into custody her "partner," Lewis H. Odenwald of Denver, Colo., as he was driving his employer, ex-Supreme Court Justice George A. Cook, 3030 Sheridan road, from the Princeton game.

Both Mrs. Moore and Odenwald, the latter known as "Lucky Lewis" for the reason he had so far escaped arrest on seven different charges, are wanted for automobile larceny and embezzlement.

Activities Began Last May. — The activities of the couple are said to extend back to last May. It is alleged that Mrs. Moore, on May 11, bought a Packard car from Isaac C. Curtis, 4533 Kenmore avenue, but disappeared with it before completing the payments. Later she is said to have obtained a position as cashier and confidential clerk with Henry S. Stratford, an interior decorator of 212 East Superior street, absconding from there on July 1 with a payroll containing $1,500.

Odenwald, who served in the Second division of the air force during the war, was employed by Joseph E. Otis, vice president of the Central Trust company, as chauffeur, leaving after smashing his employer's car to the extent of $500 worth of damage.

Holdup Is Alleged. — He is then alleged to have held up K. Hackner, a wholesale clothier of 329 South Market street, at his home at 923 Gant avenue, and to have driven away in Hackner's car.

The couple then apparently toured the west, visiting Odenwald's ranch at Thermopoli, Wyo., and selling the car for $600. Afterwards they visited Canada, Montreal, and New York, the woman afterwards going to Cleveland and Odenwald coming to Chicago.

Unveils T. R. Statue

MARIAN WELLS.

Marian Wells, little daughter of J. Ogden Wells, manufacturer of St. Joseph, Mich., and one of the famous roughriders who rode with Roosevelt at San Juan hill, pulled the cord that unveiled a statue of the late President at Benton Harbor, Mich., on Friday afternoon.

The official presentation of the statue was made by Mrs. W. P. Harvey, president of the Benton Harbor Federation of Women's Clubs, in the name of the Federated Clubwomen who gave the handsome bronze, costing $6,000, to the town. The statue was placed in the center of Roosevelt square, and is within listening distance of the chiming of three churches.

Benton Harbor was the only city in Michigan to present and dedicate a statue to the late President.

DUTCH EXPLODE 5 TONS POWDER; TEST SOUND WAVE

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 29.—The Dutch government, in an attempt to solve some of the mysteries of sound waves, today set off five tons of explosives at Oldebroek, where every window was shattered.

The scientists, who were notified before the explosion took place, are to report to the government how far the explosion was audible.

London Daily Express correspondents at Hasting reported that the explosion was heard in the North sea. They said it sounded "like distant thunder" and lasted four minutes and ten seconds. The explosion was heard widely through the southern and southwestern part of Holland, including Dordrecht, which is seventy miles away.

Ran Into Auto When Sprinting for Car; Injured

Running into an automobile at West 43d street and Westworth avenue while attempting to catch a street car Saturday, James W. Yeadon, 61 years old, of 6544 South Park avenue, suffered serious injuries. Elmer Sharp, 604 South Morgan street, driver of the machine, took Yeadon to the hospital. He reported to Englewood police, but was not held.

THE A. Manufacturing Co., through a change in the policy of the company, had a well-furnished office for which it could find no use. So the officials of the company decided to dispose of it through a Want Ad in The Tribune. This ad ran without renting the office:

A Tribune representative suggested to the advertiser that the important points of the offer were merely touched upon and not covered in sufficient detail. The following more specific Want Ad was written and run:

MAHOGANY FURNISHED
Right priv. office, facing bldg. in high grade priv. suite; res. elev. and phone service if desired. Rm. 600, 600 W. Jackson.

When The Tribune representative inquired of the A. Manufacturing Co. what results had been obtained from the larger, more specific Want Ad, she was told that the office was rented the day the ad ran. "The more you tell, the quicker you sell."

Says Government Efforts
Are Unsuccessful.

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 29.—[By the Associated Press.]—Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood, in a message to the Philippine legislature Friday, urged the strictest governmental economy and absolute retirement of the government from business. He declared that legitimate investments were safer in the Philippines than in many other countries.

His recommendations included: granting of woman suffrage, amendment of the land laws to give the tenant more equitable treatment, and enactment of legislation to prevent improvement for debt.

"Keep Out of Business."

Gov. Wood's message, in part, said: "My experience in the world war demonstrated any one thing more clearly than another it was that a government cannot successfully conduct business. The experience of the insular government confirmed this. Its efforts to engage in business, although entered into with a view of benefiting the people and aiding development, resulted in the loss of many millions of pesos. It is my desire to cooperate with you to the best of my ability in obtaining substantial benefits for the people of the Philippines. While we may have honest differences of opinion, I am confident that inasmuch as we each have a common purpose, we shall be able to harmonize our views and combine our efforts for the people's good."

Should Encourage Capital.

"If our commerce is to be built up and our development accelerated, the general policy of the government should be to encourage foreign and domestic capital in all legitimate business. As our own capital is limited and the demands upon it heavy, we should do what we can, properly, with due regard to the interests of the people, to make investments of foreign capital attractive."

REBELS ASSAIL CHURCH'S PART IN IRISH IMBROGLIO

Want Priests to Keep Out of Politics.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright, 1922, By The Chicago Tribune.]
DUBLIN, Oct. 29.—It is your duty not to support the bishops' action. As Irishmen or simple priests you can express your opinions, but as churchmen neither you nor the bishops have any authority to declare with certainty for one side or the other.

This is the answer of the Republicans to the apostolic letter of the Irish hierarchy condemning the armed opposition to the government. It is contained in a pamphlet purporting to have been written by a priest of the propaganda bureau in Suffolk street. "It is your duty to refrain from charging the Irish Republican army with looting and murder," the pamphlet continues. "We need to guard against the modern tendency to exaggerate the rights and powers of the church."

"How can the priests join the shameful chorus of vituperation of the irregulars? Do you forget that you said the same things of Mulcahey and McKeon when they were leading the Irish Republican army in 1920? You thought then that they were a murder gang. You know now that they were not."

"There is undoubtedly something of a foundation for the charge that we are a priest ridden people. It cannot be denied that Irish churchmen often take a mean advantage of the loyalty and reverence of the people towards the priests by making at least pretentious claims. "If you become Republicans you may be rusticated or suspended for writing this. Well, if I am, I will go hungry for the bread of angels for Ireland's sake, and I can go back to the boys in the hills and bless them."

POISON CAKE IN MAIL KILLS MAN; WIFE IS DYING

Clews Lacking as U. S.
Officers Get Busy.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—W. W. Sterrett, an expert accountant of Devon, who with his wife was poisoned Thursday by a piece of cake mailed to their home, died last night in the Bryn Mawr hospital.

Mrs. Sterrett, who is in the same institution, was reported in a critical condition and attending physicians hold but little hope for her recovery.

Federal, state, and local authorities are trying to trace the sender of the package. It was addressed to Mrs. Sterrett and reached her home Thursday afternoon. It bore no return address and, apart from the fact that it was mailed from a local railway station, authorities working on the case have no clew as to its origin.

The cake was in a tin box addressed in handwriting unknown to Mrs. Sterrett. It was the only contents and looked as if it had been cut from an old wedding cake. Assuming that it was from friends, Mrs. Sterrett gave it to her husband and ate the remainder herself. Both were stricken soon afterward.

Thieves Lock Shopkeeper in Basement; Take $60

BABY PLAYS PART IN MURDER TRIAL OF MRS. ROSEIER

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—Golden haired baby Richard Roseier, whose mother is on trial for murder, yesterday played his tiny part in the fight to secure her freedom.

When John R. K. Scott, her attorney, called Mrs. Ralph Chappell, Mrs. Roseier's sister-in-law, 940 Taylor street, New York, to testify she walked toward the stand carrying in her arms the 1 year old baby whose presence in the courtroom has done a great deal toward creating sympathy for the accused woman.

This was Attorney Scott's psychological act. The baby gazed with serene and wondering eyes at the faces of the jury as Mrs. Chappell walked past the box, and they returned his glance with no apparent emotion. As the pretty golden haired infant witness reached the stand it prattled softly. But instead of a sympathetic response an unexpected murmur of disquiet spread throughout the room.

Judge Barratt instructed Attorney Scott to remove the infant from Mrs. Chappell's arms.

Boy Finds That Hens Pay for Selves; Roosters Don't

Winsted, Conn., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—What does it cost to raise a chicken? Frank Lagrotta, a Warren boy, decided to find out for himself and went into the hen business keeping records. He raised forty-five chickens—twenty-five cockerels and twenty pullets. These cost $13.50, or an average of 30 cents each. The cockerels were sold, and brought $18.25, an average of 73 cents each. Thus the cockerels paid for themselves and the pullets and a profit of 9 cents a bird besides.

URGE GATES AT SCENE OF FATAL CROSSING CRASH

Recommendation that gates be installed at the River road crossing on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad at Des Plaines was made Saturday by a committee's report which held an inquest over the bodies of Joseph Buris and Annie Malachuk, killed at that place Tuesday night when their motor truck was struck by a suburban train.

The jury decided that the death of the men was due to an accident, but urged that gates be installed.

Uncertain Advertising Policies—

Some executives are so uncertain as to the soundness of the advertising policy of their own company that they allow themselves to be influenced by the least considered chance remark of a casual acquaintance. On almost any other phase of their business policy they would hardly give weight to anything but the most carefully thought-out suggestion.

There are many other executives, who know the satisfaction of being loyal to a practical, common-sense advertising undertaking. It is because of confidence in their underlying policy, plan and method, formulated in co-operation with experienced, advertising counsel.

Advertisers appreciating a safeguard to every step in advertising will be interested in the resources and 18 years' experience of this advertising agency organization. Our booklet, "48 Ideas on Advertising and Merchandising," sent free.

We Can Show the Way to Economy and Satisfaction in

ORIENTAL RUGS

The choosing of Oriental Rugs is largely a matter of confidence in your rug merchant—unless, of course, you are a connoisseur.

The fact that we are the largest dealers and direct importers in Chicago of Oriental Rugs exclusively, naturally implies established confidence on the part of Chicago people.

We handle Oriental Rugs exclusively because we cannot conscientiously recommend imitations of, or substitutes for, genuine art and life-long satisfaction—especially in view of the fact that the cost of Oriental Rugs per year of service is much less than that of machine-made imitations. Worthy of immediate attention are the following:

To quote all the praise from the daily press would be only made possible by getting out a special Sunday-like edition of this paper today so we'll only tell you a few of the good things you'll see when you come to the New McVickers.

McVickers Symphony Orchestra

"The orchestra under the direction of H. Leopold Spitalny was the most stimulating, vivid, ray body of players I ever heard in a cinema. I hope the management will accept this sincere tribute and my thanks for one of the most delightful evenings I have spent in a movie in all my busy life."

—Says Herman Devries, Music Critic, Evening American.

Adolph Bolm Ballet

"The Bolm Ballet made a series of graceful pictures. The opening of this brilliant theater did not properly come in my department, but I sneaked in on the strength of Bolm and his ballet, which forms so important a part of the Chicago Opera Company. Glad to have the opportunity to welcome this distinguished artist and his dancers to Chicago."

—Says Karleton Hackett, Music Critic, Evening Post.

"Autumn Leaves" STAGE PRELUDE

"Autumn Leaves" presented with a gorgeous background of flaming fall colors and the gaily colored leaves falling one by one on the groups below. A welcomed contrast were the old fashioned tunes to the jazz of the present day."

—Says B. W. Dennison, Movie Critic, Herald Examiner.

ATTACK ON A-B-F EXPERTS TO OPEN IN TWO QUARTERS

Brundage and Ettelson to Start Court Actions.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Attorney General Brundage will ask a local court this week to dissolve the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation. This is the crowd of appraisal experts who valued the surface and elevated lines for the city at a cost of $279,000, of which approximately $100,000 represented "sugar" content. Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson reports that the concern has failed to pay its state franchise tax, and he is expected today to certify the company for dissolution.

The first incorporation was of the Adams-Beatty corporation on August 27, 1919. The name was changed to the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation Oct. 23 following. The capital stock was $20,000 and the incorporators were W. S. Adams, his brother, Asa G. Adams, now a municipal court judge and H. O. Beatty.

Injunction to Be Sought. Still more trouble for the experts probably will be made this week or next by Attorneys Louis E. Hart and Lawrence A. Cohen, acting for Corporation Counsel Ettelson.

They are expected to ask for an injunction "enjoining and restraining the defendants and each of the defendants, until further order of the court, from destroying, disposing of or taking out of the jurisdiction of this court any of the books of account, records, payrolls, or other documents of the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation alleged to have been performed by or alleged to have been performed by the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation in the matter of appraisal of the surface lines and elevated railways in the city of Chicago and that such injunction be granted without notice to the defendants or either of the defendants." This action is desired by the attorneys as a precautionary measure in the suit to recover "many thousands of dollars" which were "fraudulently procured" from the city treasury.

In addition the attorneys will ask the court to order the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation to "state in whose custody are the books of account, records, payrolls relating to the appraisal of the surface and elevated lines, and the corporation records of said corporation, and where said books of account, records, payrolls and corporation records are kept."

More specifically the attorneys will ask also that the corporation tell the court in its answer to the suit "what employees or officers of the Adams-Beatty-Francois corporation kept the payrolls and records with reference to employees engaged upon said appraisal."

GERMAN PAPERS ARE THREATENED BY HIGH COSTS

BERLIN.—[By United Press.]—German newspapers, confronted by a print paper price increase of 250 times the pre-war price, are rapidly facing extinction. Many, in fact, have closed already.

Despite the rapid rise in the advertising rates and the circulation price, papers are unable to keep pace with the increased cost of production. Increase of retail price of papers from three to seven marks in less than a month has not solved the problem. Curtailment in the number of editions and the quality of the work has, therefore, gone forward rapidly.

Possibility of a mental starvation, due to the lack of readable newspapers and books, is predicted by one newspaper, which itself feels the pinch of financial stringency.

GEO. C. BASTIAN TELLS STUDENTS WHAT IS NEWS

Franklin, Ind., Oct. 23.—The attitude of the modern newspaper is that of a secretary to society or a historian, and it assumes no more responsibility. George C. Bastian, assistant Sunday editor of The Chicago Tribune, said in an address to Indiana college and high school students here last night.

Giving a demonstration of what he termed news arithmetic, Mr. Bastian said:

"1 ordinary man plus 1 ordinary life equals zero in news."

"1 ordinary man plus 1 extraordinary adventure equals news."

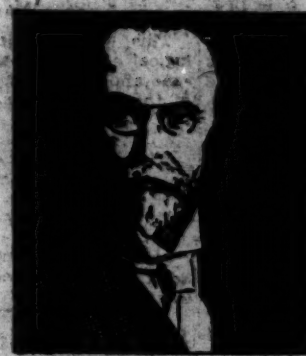

"1 ordinary man plus 1 extraordinary achievement equals news."

"1 chorus girl plus 1 bank cashier minus $100,000 equals news."

"1 man plus 1 auto plus 1 gun plus 1 quart equals news."

The optimist mistakenly assigns to the modern newspaper a moralistic mission, while the pessimist makes the mistake of regarding the newspaper as untruthful and superficial. The real newspaper, he says, records news events impartially and without favor in its news columns, reserving comment on events for its editorial columns or signed articles.

"AHRA" WORD OF HOPE GIVEN TO RUSSIA BY U. S.

Their Pronunciation of American Relief Body.

LONDON.—[By United News.]—In bringing relief to a famine stricken people, the Americans have introduced a new word into the everyday vocabulary of Soviet Russia. This word is murmured with heartfelt gratitude by the peasant masses. It is shouted joyfully from the lips of children. It is a word to conjure with in Russia today.

The new word is "ahra." It represents the native pronunciation of "A. R. A." the three initials which symbolize the American Relief Administration, and all the work that organization has done.

The birth of the new word, and what it represents in Russo-American relations, was described to the United News by E. M. Fiesh, president of the United States Grain corporation and controller of the American Relief Administration. Mr. Fiesh also was a member of the purchasing commission appointed by President Harding to dispose of the $20,000,000 voted by the American congress to the Russian famine sufferers.

Grateful to America.

"Next to the actual conditions in Russia," Fiesh said, "what impressed me most was the complete realization every one in Russia has of the work America has done. In the famine districts the sight of an American is a signal for a demonstration. When we visited the feeding kitchen, now being maintained in the czar's old palace at Tsarskoe Selo, the children jumped to their feet and shouted a spontaneous greeting of 'Spasibo,' the Russian word for 'thanks.' And as for the new word 'ahra'—it is a magic talisman."

Fiesh has just ended a month's inspection trip through the famine regions. He believes Russia will have enough food to sustain her until the next harvest, provided the supplies are properly distributed. The railroads, he said, had improved greatly in the last few months. He described one long line of ninety locomotives—"beautiful cars they were, too"—which he saw being hauled into Russia from Germany.

Appears Almost Normal.

"To a casual traveler," Fiesh said, "the appearance of Russia is almost normal. Butter and eggs, bread, and even meat, can be bought at the stations, although prices are exorbitant for any one dealing in native currency. The only outward sign of famine are the crowds of beggars who clutter up the railroad stations and the homeless children who wander about the country. The A. R. A. will have to feed the children again next year. But the back of the famine is broken. We fed one and a half million people at the peak of our activities. That number is being decreased now, and henceforth we will care for just the orphan children and the sick. The American medical program in Russia is one of the biggest things ever done by one country for another.

Hospitals Stocked Up.

"We'd go into hospitals and see absolutely empty shelves. Then an order would be issued and in would pour boxes of supplies. The Americans are running a huge drug store business in Russia. So enormous are the stocks which the United States government and the American Red Cross are supplying that the people could not believe at first they were gifts. When they learned no charge was to be made their gratitude was touching. Doctors came to us with tears in their eyes to express their thanks. But best of all were the kids. It made you feel good when they shouted 'ahra.' The children like their newly found word. To them it is a word of salvation and hope."

$63,000,000 Spent in U. S. Monthly for Amusements

The treasury department reports that approximately $63,000,000 is spent each month for amusements throughout the United States. The bulk of this money is spent at the moving picture theaters, at circuses and amusement parks.

Farmers Harvest 64 Bu.

Corn Out of Possible 100. An average for a period of thirteen years shows that farmers realize only 64 bushels out of every potential yield of 100 bushels of corn planted in this country.

EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY, BUT BIG DOGS ARE OVER

Every dog has his day; the proverb seems to hold true of the whole breeds of dogs. Many breeds have had their day and sunk into oblivion. Thirty years ago the Yarm without a great, hulking mastiff as its watchdog was incomplete—that was the heyday of the hobo. Mastiffs and hoboes have gone off together to the land of no more. Newfoundland and St. Bernard are other breeds that used to find general favor when dog meat cost a cent a pound or so. The Great Dane has kept a sort of country house popularity; one must have space before these huge animals can enjoy life. Little dogs suffice to satisfy the mere instinct to love and cherish. As big dogs grow more expensive and less necessary, man's love for them, even in the country, has lessened.

The Fairfield Bedroom Set
A Product of The Tobey Shops

The design of the Fairfield bedroom suite is a much admired motif of Early American days, carried out in solid mahogany, finished in the mellow color that age gives and rubbed to an eggshell gloss.

Below the top of the dresser, chiffonier and toilet table there is a frieze of curly maple, finished in a syrup color, and as a further contrast the upper drawer fronts have the striking "plum pudding mahogany" figure.

The set includes eight pieces—dresser, chiffonier, toilet table, bench, twin beds, stand and chair. The price complete is $970.

Handmade Furniture

By "Handmade" we mean that any work that can be done better by hand than by machinery is done by hand.

The one thought in building Tobey-made furniture is to make it the best furniture that can be built, and leading furniture makers recognize and admit that Tobey-made furniture is the best furniture made in the United States.

There are many ways in which Tobey-made differs from all other furniture produced in this country. Factories that work for quantity production cannot give the same attention to small detail and individual cabinet work as in the Tobey factory. In the Tobey factory each piece is built by cabinet makers who take great pride in producing a perfect piece of furniture, a Tobey masterpiece.

This group of men has a collective knowledge and experience that more than sixty-five years' experience has given the Tobey organization, knowledge that does not pass on with the individual, but is handed down as part of the heritage of the company.

CHICAGO WOMEN THINK They keep posted. They make their husbands leave THE TRIBUNE at home every morning so they can keep posted. And their husbands get other TRIBUNES at the corner stand.

What to do—what to do?

[and likewise, where to go—where to go?]

SOME of the critics say Chicago is not theatre-wise, especially Eastern critics who wonder at our frequent rejection of shows and pictures that come West with Broadway's stamp of approval.

The reason may be that it is Chicago herself that passes judgment, and not a group of visitors who come to town intent upon enjoying whatever they see.

May be.

Theatre-wise or not, this town is vitally interested in amusements. Shows come and go. Some stay indefinitely—others find cold comfort and leave quickly for more friendly (or less critical) parts.

But good or bad, they all herald themselves in the amusement columns of the Evening American, for years Chicago's leading amusement directory.

Two pages every day are devoted to amusements. Reviews of new shows and motion pictures are written by experts, current news of the famous stage and screen favorites is given in abundance, and in every respect these famous pages keep Evening American readers fully posted on theatrical information.

And in advertising—which is the tangible evidence of the theatre-owner's valuation of the amusement pages—the Evening American's lead over ALL OF ITS EVENING COMPETITORS is striking.

Here are the amusement advertising lineage figures for the first nine months of 1922:

Evening American	News	Post	Journal
461,226	320,888	219,167	258,540

While it has no direct connection with breakfast food or neckwear, amusement advertising indicates convincingly the kind of people who read the Evening American—

The kind of people who are prosperous, and who spend money generously for the kind of merchandise they want, whether it is amusement—merchandise or neckwear.

The Lake Mystery

BY MARVIN DANA

SYNOPSIS.
Harve Abernethy, a miserly musician, willed his musical library unworthily to Saxe, a young musician and the son of the woman he had loved in his youth, and left him three hundred thousand dollars in gold, contingent on Saxe's finding, within a month of Abernethy's death, the chest in which the old man had secreted it. The rest of his property, including his home in Maine and the grounds surrounding it, he had left to a younger cousin, Margaret West. If Saxe failed to locate the gold within a specified time it was to be divided by his lawyer, half to go to Margaret West and the other half to be used as a foundation for a home for disabled musicians.

Saxe is determined to find the money in order that he may devote all his time to the composition of operas, so he enlists the aid of his three infamously friends, Billy Walker, Roy Morton and David Thuring, who agree to accompany him to the old miser's home in Maine and there conduct a systematic search for the treasure.

Mr. Thuring, the pretty young secretary of Abernethy, had been asked by the lawyer to remain in the house after the musician's death. She is engaged to Saxe's lawyer, an earnest lawyer in the neighborhood. He is an eccentric fellow, and when May tells him of the treasure will be makes up his mind to beat the rightful heir to the treasure if he can. May tries unavailingly to get him to give up the search.

When the four men arrive at the old miser's home Margaret West and her mother are already established there. The two women receive the gold hunters graciously. Saxe and his friends, with Margaret West and her mother, are all in the house. They can, however, search the house and grounds for traces of the gold or clues leading to its hiding place. It is all a great deal of a lark at first. Saxe's interest in the gold hunt is overshadowed by his pleasure in Margaret's winning smile and her constant presence in his search for the fortune, while Roy Morton finds an ever increasing pleasure in the companionship of May Thuring.

Masters, who, while still secretly seeking the gold, is now openly devoting himself to winning the beautiful and lovable Margaret West.

INSTALLMENT XIX. "I SAVED YOUR LIFE."

It chanced that a decanter stood on the table, close to the edge, just by Billy Walker's right elbow. As he turned to address David, on his left, his right arm was moved carelessly, and the decanter was jolted from its place. It tipped for a second, balanced on its bottom edge, then fell over the side of the table toward the floor. But the time, brief as it was, had been sufficient for action on the part of Saxe. Naturally of exceeding rapidity of movement, although he held this under restraint ordinarily, so that he appeared rather languid than otherwise, an instantaneous responsiveness of his body to any command of the will had been cultivated by the years of exercise at the piano. So, now, on the instant when he perceived the touch of Billy's elbow to the decanter, he darted in a single step from his seat to a position behind Mrs. West's chair with arm outstretched, and, in the same second, his nimble fingers had closed on the neck of the falling decanter, to which they clung tenaciously. Before he could again straighten himself, there came a thud against the east wall of the dining room—with it, the sharp crack of a rifle, fired from close at hand.

Saxe stood erect—stared dumfounded at the others. They stared back at him, wordless for the moment, stupefied. Each looked at first one and then another, unable to surmise as to what had come upon them. It was Masters who finally broke the oppressive silence. The engineer's face was of a dead white, and, as he spoke, he tugged nervously at the luxuriant mustache. "Some hunter's been mighty careless," he declared, and he smiled, rather feebly, on Margaret, who had looked up at the sound of his voice.

"He sure was some careless," agreed David, who, at times, relapsed into as idly dialect. "Shootin' promiscuouslike!" He giggled at the startled comment through his thick lenses.

With a babel broke forth, a confusion of exclamations, in which were voiced alarm, wonder, and anger. It was Saxe, still on his feet, who first brought himself of the thud heard from the direction of the east wall. At once he went to the sideboard, which was against the wall on that side. Only a brief search was necessary to reveal the hole which the bullet had pierced in the top drawer of the sideboard. Saxe uttered an ejaculation that brought the others crowding about him. He exhibited the opening left by the bullet's passing, then pulled out the drawer and found the missile itself imbedded in the back. Roy and David, who had become familiar with deadly weapons on the frontier of the Northland, dug out the bullet, and immediately proceeded to learned discourse as to its character and the caliber of the rifle from which it had been sent. Billy Walker took no interest in this discussion, and, having stood on his feet for a longer time than his custom, returned to his seat at the table, where he disposed himself with a sigh of relief.

The ladies, too, went back to their places, but Saxe, David, and Roy, with Masters, ran out of the cottage to search for the person who had fired the shot. From the place in which the bullet had lodged it was evident that the rifle had been fired from some point on the ridge back of the cottage, and up this the four took their way, scattering as they went to cover a line of considerable length. They made a pretty thorough examination, but came on nothing to indicate who the culprit might have been. The underbrush was thick along the ridge, yet the range of space shown by the direction of the bullet was so small that they were enabled to beat the coverts with completeness. In the end it was the general agreement that some hunter had fired at a squirrel on the slope, probably in ignorance that a dwelling lay beyond the screen of foliage. Afterward he had gone on his way, without any realization of possible peril from the shot.

The dusk was falling ere they abandoned the hunt and started on their return to the house. It was just before they reached the house that Saxe, David, and Roy, with Masters, who heard him usually laugh for sheer sympathy before inquiring the cause of his mirth. At the sound Saxe and Roy smiled expectantly, but Masters only looked on curiously.

"There's a bit of comedy in this near tragedy," David explained, after he had put a period to his merriment. "When you get back to the house, Saxe, old man," he went on, more seriously, "it's up to you to get down on your marrow bones and say, 'Thank you' to your indolent friend Billy Walker."

"Why?" Saxe demanded in astonishment.

"For the simple reason that he came all fired close to saving your life. In fact, I haven't a doubt that he actually did save it. If not that, he saved you a nasty wound."

"I don't understand yet," Saxe said, perplexed.

"It's just this," David explained. "From the location of the bullet in the sideboard I'm strongly of the opinion that you were exactly in the line of it, so that if you had been sitting in your place at the table you would have had it clean through the chest. You jumped to catch the decanter Billy knocked off the table with his elbow. That movement on your part saved you. It was Billy's awkwardness that caused your action. So it's up to you to thank him for saving your life. And, as a matter of fact, though I laughed, it's not exactly a subject for mirth."

Saxe's expression had grown very grave as he listened. There comes always to the normal man a shock on realizing the imminence of death for himself. The fact that the peril is past alters the nature of the shock, but it lessens it. So, in this present instance, the young man whose great risk was thus suddenly brought home to him felt the thrill of deep emotion, in which thankfulness for the fate that had intervened in his behalf was strong. He said nothing for a few moments, nor did Roy, who in his turn was affected by the understood danger that had menaced his friend. Masters uttered an exclamation which was indeterminate as to meaning.

They found the others still in the dining room and immediately learned that Billy Walker was quite willing to sacrifice his modesty on the altar of fact: for he greeted their return with a ringing statement.

"Saxe, my boy, I saved your life, and I hope you'll do me credit. From a study of the range of the trajectory of the bullet I have learned that had you been in your place at the table the bullet would have penetrated your breast at a vital point. My clumsiness was the first cause of your escape. Examine for yourself!" He waved his hand toward the sideboard.

Saxe, his face still grave, nodded assent.

"I appreciate it, Billy," he said, "and I'll not forget it, you may be sure. Dave, too, thought of it."

"Fool, no thanks to me," Billy declared, embarrassed by the emotion in his friend's voice. "It was only by accident that I interfered—not by volition."

"I know," Saxe agreed. "But the fact remains that you were the instrument of salvation, and that is what I shall always remember." He looked toward Margaret West as he spoke, and saw that her face was very pale. He wondered how much of that pallor—if, indeed, any of it—had been caused by his own peril.

For a fleeting second the girl's limpid blue eyes met his, then they were veiled by the thick lashes. He found himself unable to read the meaning that had lain in them. He went to his chair, seated himself, and afterward twisted about to mark the precise line in which the bullet had passed. There could be no manner of doubt: its course had been such that he could have escaped only by a miracle had he been in his place. There could have been only a slight variation in the direction of the bullet, dependent on the position of the victim. That variation could be by no means have been great enough to save him from a grave, probably a mortal, wound. Saxe shuddered at the narrowness of his escape was again and thus visibly borne in on his consciousness.

He looked about the cheery room and into the faces of the others with a sort of wonder in the realization that he was still of the quick and of the dead. The life of life took on new flavor. He gazed again at Margaret.

All went into the music room presently, still talking of the event that had been so close to tragedy—except May Thuring. Without attracting any attention, she quietly slipped away from the others into the out of doors.

There are times when one finds it well nigh impossible to analyze the workings of the mind, and it was so with this girl tonight. Suspicion had come to her—suspicion, terrible, irresistible—and she knew not whence it came. She fought against it in an effort of reason, but she fought in vain. She could not flee its clutch, strive as she would. In the end she made a subject matter and fled forth into the night to learn whether suspicion taught her truth or lie.

The Question.

Who should push the baby buggy, mother or father?

Where Asked.
Michigan avenue bridge.

The Answers.
Mrs. L. M. Cooper, 4328 North Troy street.—They say it is the proper thing for the man to push the baby buggy. But just the same I like to do that work, if you call it work, myself. Our little baby is a healthy little tot and he's getting heavier every month, but I believe I can safely manage that buggy for some time yet.

Paul Warner, Arvada, Colorado, ranch man.—If they are going to argue about who's going to push the buggy, they'd better move somewhere where there are any babies, then neither of them would have to push it. They say there are places here where they don't allow children.

Miss Esther O'Connor, 4758 Magnolia avenue, Clark creek.—When a man is out with his wife I think he should take care of the baby carriage. But I hate to see a man out pushing a baby carriage by himself. I think it looks too silly, or molly-coddlelike; sometimes it looks forlorn and lonesomelike.

Duncan Fittin, 2384 Indiana avenue, student.—If it is very heavy the husband should push it. The man was made to work, anyhow, and he might as well be doing that as anything else. If the wife gets jealous, why, then, let her do it, unless he objects.

Ivey Kirkwood, Bradley hotel, actress.—Both should push it because they are both interested in the same object. Babies are such a treasure that it is worth while. Life is too short to waste over trivialities.

Galli Curci as Ever Wins High Acclaim

Great Audience Hears Her in Auditorium.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In the fragmentary sections that made up the mosaic of yesterday's musical events, Mme. Galli-Curci seemed to be the most potent influence on the greatest number of people. It has become the merest commonplace in making a report of her vocal appearances to announce that the only reason that her audience was not larger was because the Auditorium could not hold more people. She is a following who regard her with the adoring attitude of the queen who can do no wrong, and on whom she works her wiles of lovely voice, dainty, winsome demeanour, and pictorial appearance. A group of French songs, displaying now atmosphere, now melody, and again brilliant vocalism, by all of which she has won the affection of her public, became the cause of her now famous encore, "Clavelito," sung once to the supplemental audience on the stage and a second time to the main body of the house. She was even lovelier later in the program, in a medium more familiar to her and her auditors.

Another sold out house greeted the Civic Orchestra of Chicago at Orchestra hall. This is one of the most interesting musical organizations in the country, not only for what it does now, but for what it promises in the city's future musical life. With Eric De Lamarter conducting, it played with the concert of Borowski, Saint-Saens and Herbert with excellent tone, discipline and spirit. Mildred Brown made a special success of her own in her performance of the obligato passage in "The Deluge."

Allen Spencer, pianist, and Louise Winter, soprano, were heard in the first part of their joint recital at the Blackstone theatre. Mr. Spencer played a Schubert and Brahms group with a convincing authority arising from profound study plus sensitive reactions to the best in music. Mrs. Winter sang a German group understandingly and effectively.

Elsa Kressman, a soprano, with a voice and manner of singing of the kind to give considerable promise in the future, appeared in an admirable recital at the Playhouse. She was in French group at the time the hall was reached, and she sang well from the first. Most of her program was of profound study plus sensitive reactions to the best in music. Mrs. Winter sang a German group understandingly and effectively.

Among other musical visitors yesterday was Alexus Baas, a resident of Wisconsin's capital city, Madison. In a recital at the Blackstone theatre, he is a baritone, and an unusually interesting one, not from his voice, which is good, though not supreme, but from an intelligent attention to texts and musical phrasing. Most of his program was of profound study plus sensitive reactions to the best in music. Mrs. Winter sang a German group understandingly and effectively.

Frederick Fredericksen gave a recital at Kimball hall, where he would seem to be a super-violin. Said to be valued at $25,000, from its own qualities and that of its player, it emitted tones of ideally lovely quality. This was in the performance of some highly agile music by Emile Sauret.

Lowden to Speak at Mass Meeting for Legion Drive

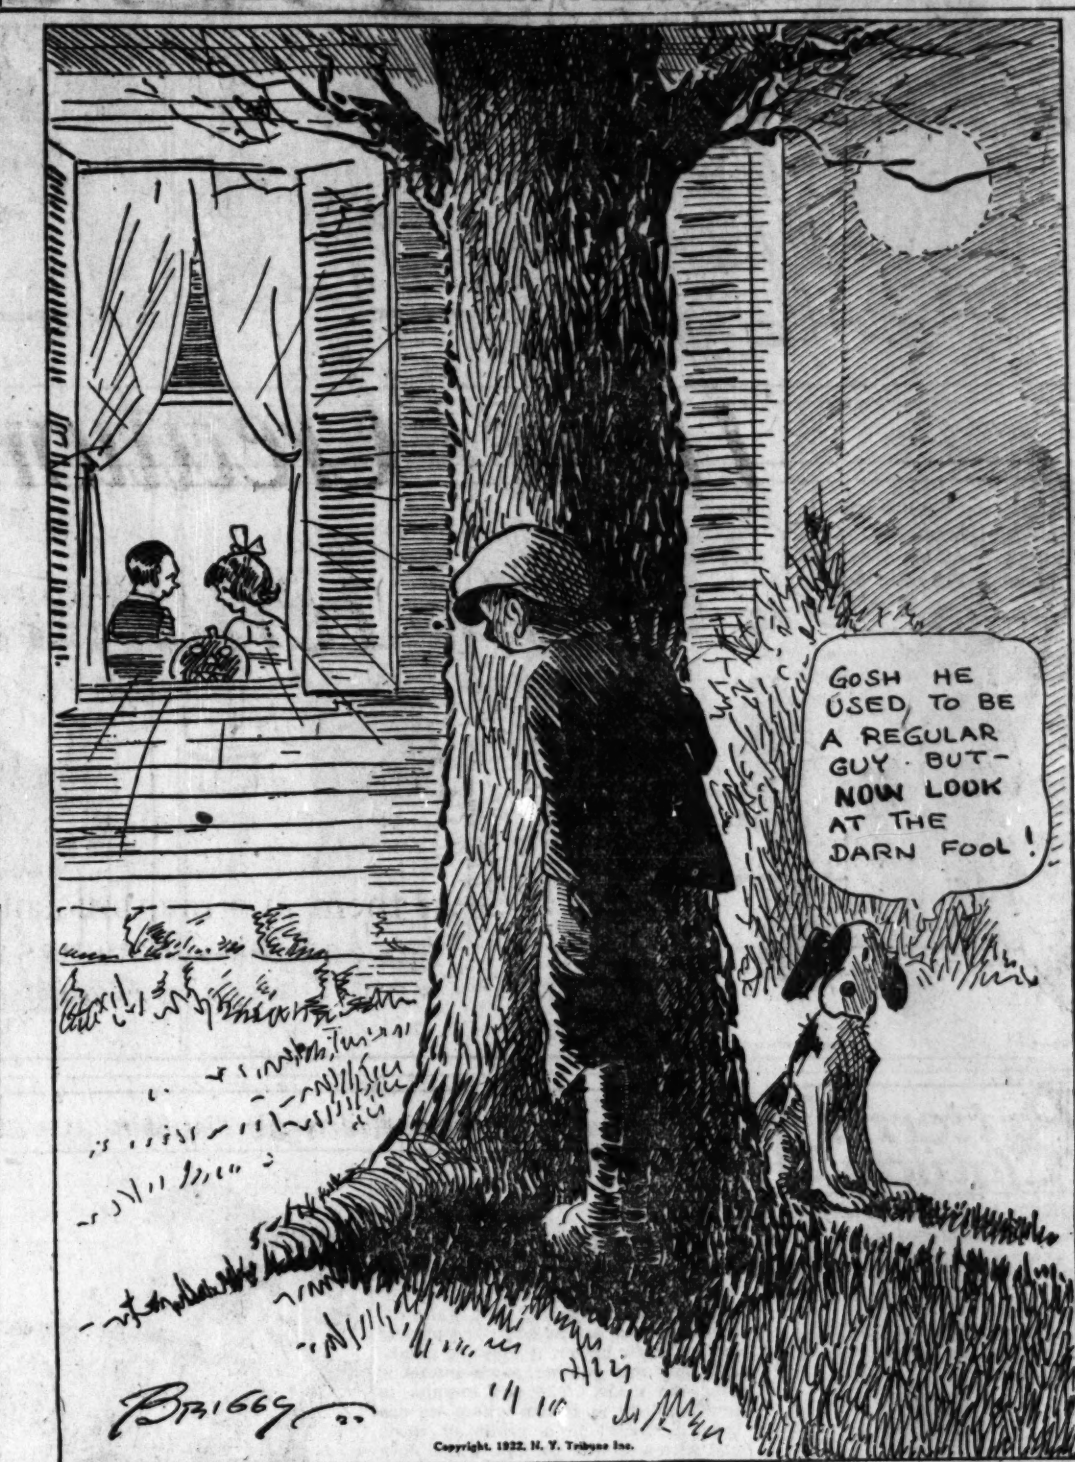

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is to be the principal speaker at a patriotic mass meeting Wednesday noon at the Selwyn theatre, under the auspices of the American Legion, Memorial and Home Relief Fund committee.

The committee is raising a fund of $750,000 to permanently take care of the needy ex-service men of Chicago and Cook county. It will be administered by a joint committee of prominent Chicago business men and legionnaires. The fund will not only provide relief the way of food and lodging, but will also maintain an employment bureau, a headquarters for the Americanization, hospitalization and adjusted compensation program of the American Legion. Half of the fund will be used for this purpose and the other half will be spent to provide a building suitable for a Chicago headquarters for the American Legion, which now numbers 150 posts in the county.

The Marquis Macaroni presented the couple with a silver tray on behalf of the foreign consular corps. Francis B. Keene, American consul general in Rome, and his daughters were among the guests.

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

Beware the Spooks! Play These Games with the Kiddies

Witches and goblins had better stay at home tomorrow night, Halloween, for the police will get 'em, if they don't watch out!

No switching of signposts; no breaking of gates; no ringing of doorbells; no tick-tocks; no mischievous pranks whatever—that was the warning issued yesterday at police headquarters.

"Any youngsters on the streets who look like they might get into mischief will be chased home," officers were instructed.

So this night of eerie things, still held by the superstitions of some localities to be the evening when witches walk abroad, and ride broomsticks, brewing trouble and other tricks, will be observed by the young of Chicago with timely ceremonies, held indoors.

Jack o' Lantern, and Jill o' Lantern, too—meaning all boys and girls—will have plenty of recreation and entertainment to mark the passing of All Saints' eve, however, for families, schools and public institutions have planned many affairs.

Kindergarten institutions particularly have taken an active interest in arranging affairs for the kiddies and the following time honored games will be played:

Bobbing for Apples.—Apples are placed in receptacles, washbue used to be the things, and boys and girls try to bite them without getting their faces wet.

Old Scottish Traditional Game.—Boys and girls, blindfolded, are led into a garden, and each pulls the first stalk from some fairly uniform bed of plants. Then they go back into the house and learn from the stalks what kind of future husband or wife each will have. According as the stalks are big or little, straight or crooked, so will the future helpmate be. Earth clinging to the roots indicates the amount of wealth in the marriage. The taste of the pith is held indicative of the temper.

Water games.—Three dishes, one containing clean water, another colored water, and the third empty, are placed upon a table. Youngsters blindfolded are led to them and they dip their fingers in at random. One selecting the unadulterated water will marry a maiden; the colored water indicates a widow, and he who blunders into the empty dish will be a bachelor.

A ring, placed on the top of a mound of flour makes a suitable game, the boys and girls trying to remove it without disturbing the flour.

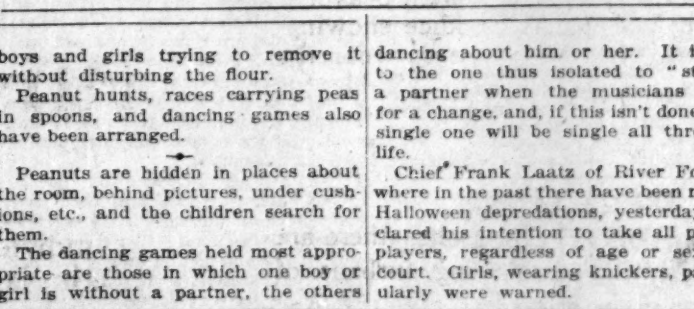

Peanut punts, races carrying peas in spoons, and dancing games also have been arranged.

Peanuts are hidden in places about the room, behind pictures, under cushions, etc., and the children search for them.

The dancing games held most appropriate are those in which one boy or girl is without a partner, the others dancing about him or her. It is up to the one thus isolated to "steal" a partner when the musicians call for a change, and, if this isn't done, the single one will be single all through life.

Chief Frank Laatz of River Forest, where in the past there have been many Halloween depredations, yesterday declared his intention to take all grand players, regardless of age or sex, to court. Girls, wearing knickers, particularly were warned.

HAVE YOU EVER PLAYED THESE GAMES?

Good morning!
I don't see how, for any amount of money in this world little Jackie Coogan's mother can BEAR to have him work in pictures like "Oliver Twist." He almost broke my heart and I'm not even a poor relation.

The spark of genius surely burns in this boy! Direction, no matter how clever, could never ever get out of him what he gives. When he plays a character he IS the character. He has made Dickens' pitiful little hero live TOO realistically. Poor baby! Such a life!

Supporting the wee star are people who have been most carefully chosen and who are practically perfect in their parts. Who, for instance, could be better as Fagin, than Lon Chaney, that able interpreter of underworld types? As the "merry old gentleman" who looks with the clever fangs of youth he has corrupted, Mr. Chaney's Fagin is a bent, grizzled, fang-toothed horror, crippled in mind and body, whose smugness is a menace and whose softly spoken "my dear" a curse in disguise.

George Siegman plays aptly the unlovely role of the burly and brutal Bill Sykes. One of the few times during the showing of "Oliver Twist" that you want to smile is when he makes a false step and hammers himself. Gladys Brockwell is a wise and hopeless Nancy. Lionel Belmore as the kindly old book lover who befriends Oliver is fine. You're pretty jealous of those arms that get a chance to so warmly unfold the adorable little fellow!

O, Jackie Coogan, with your trustful eyes, your tiny, gallant little figure! Your chubby baby hands! I don't believe anybody could EVER sit through "Oliver Twist" twice! Is the picture well produced? It is. And the ending is happy for Oliver. But there's a "long, long, trail winding to the land of dreams"—a tortuous trail that hurts you worse. I'm certain, that if it did Jackie while the film was being made, (Chances are he adored being miserable.)

"Oliver Twist" is a fine picture—if you can stand it!

LONDON MARKET DRAGS; TRADERS WATCH POLITICS

BY ROBERT STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
Copyright, 1932, by The Chicago Tribune.
LONDON, Oct. 29.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—It is little to be wondered at that business on the London exchange dwindled during the last week, considering that the general election activities are in full swing. The most depressing feature was the break in continental exchanges, especially the French franc, following a rather dismal budget forecast, all of which resulted in a large section of international securities and Kaffirs being freely offered. A few strong exceptions were provided, however, and these helped to offset what otherwise might have developed into a heavy retrogression in all departments.

Oil edged securities enjoyed a fair degree of strength, conversion and funding loans being firm. Foreign securities were influenced largely by the slump in the franc and by the consequent flatness in French bonds. Brazilians, next to the French, slumped most conspicuously upon continental selling. Mexicans were weak.

Home Halls Weak.
Home rails, chiefly for technical reasons, suffered the most unattractive week of months. The announcement of fusion terms for two systems encouraged the bears, who railed the market, forcing a recession in the stocks of several of the companies concerned. Foreign rails were better sustained, Argentines forging ahead after optimistic opinions were expressed at the meetings of the various companies, notably the Buenos Aires and Great Southern, at which pro-war dividends of 7 per cent were predicted this year if the harvest is normal. The declaration of a 4 per cent dividend by the United of Havana also helped the rising tendency.

Industrials were quiet, the inclination to close out commitments pending the shaping of the domestic political situation resulting in lower prices among many favorites. Maroons were comparatively steady; tobaccos were weaker; textiles eased off, and iron and steel tended towards mild recovery.

Oils Have Bad Week.
Oils sagged disastrously, due to lack of public support. Mexican Eagles continued out of favor and Shell was weak upon the continental situation.

Mines were reactionary, Kaffirs falling with the franc, and diamonds weakened sympathy. Russo-Asiatic met a slight setback, despite the optimistic sentiments expressed at the company's meeting. This was occasioned, however, only by the liquidation of uncalculated options on stock. The resumption of negotiations with the Russian soviet by the company's representatives tended to harden the shares, and the indications are that they will experience a sharp recovery in the near future.

Rubbers were depressed after a spell of buoyancy, but the losses were slight.

'MIRACLE MAN' OF MISSISSIPPI HAVING TROUBLE

BILOXI, Miss.—[United Press.]—Brother Isaiah, who not long ago was made the hero of Frank Packard's novel and picture, "The Miracle Man," was practically true to life when he attracted thousands with his miracle healing at New Orleans from a Mississippi river houseboat. But he is not the same old "miracle man" now.

Some months ago upon his return to New Orleans from California, he removed to the north shore of the Back Bay of Biloxi. He brought a large number of his followers here and settled on a farm. The followers began to till the soil, while Isaiah was to heal the sick.

But things have changed. Instead of the old humble looking man that performed over afflicted people on the Mississippi river, Brother Isaiah would pass for a wealthy retired manufacturer.

He comes into Biloxi often, all dressed in white in a handsome closed automobile, nice white kid shoes, white hat and a suit of the latest cut.

It is said his followers are deserting him and that there are not enough men left to till the soil.

HOBOLLEGE IS OPENED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—One of the unique colleges in the country opened recently with an enrollment of more than thirty. It is called the Hobo Labor college and provides for all hobos and migratory workers.

Comrade Terry, the secretary, said it was proving a success and that this winter they would have more than 200 men in the college building on Ridge avenue.

It is absolutely free, tuition, books and dormitories being furnished the students, and while it has only two professors as yet, they work overtime to make up the deficiency.

The institution is supported by the James Eads How Foundation and by casual gifts.

EACH TELEGRAPH OPERATOR HAS OWN 'LANGUAGE'

According to the results of a special study among telegraph operators, government investigators have determined that each operator has a telegraphic language of his own, differing from the typical form, although a can, of course, understand one another. The greatest number of words known to have been sent in one minute by the Morse code, is forty-nine. The average sending rate is a minimum of four letters each. Skilful operators can usually receive faster than they can send, but with beginners the case is reversed.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

COPYRIGHT, 1932 BY FAIRCHILD NEWS SERVICE

CHICAGO.—Retail business during last fortnight shows marked spurt in middle western cities, according to Fairchild News Service reports. Activity is particularly apparent in Chicago, Minneapolis, and Cincinnati. Colder weather and special sales are stimulating factors in activity.

COHOES, N. Y.—Majority of knit goods manufacturers are receiving heavy orders from jobbers. Most heavyweight underclothing mills are running full blast.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Syracuse men's clothing market appears to be staging comeback for spring. Manufacturers who hitherto produced only staples are "dressing up" their lines with young men's models and making play for this business. Retail trade is showing increased interest in this market.

NEW YORK.—Campaign for wider use of suspenders is showing satisfactory results. Number of larger mills are now several weeks behind in delivery.

LONDON.—By means of new patented attachments Nottingham lace manufacturers are producing blankets, imitation stockinette towels, etc., on their looms. With lace industry in depressed condition these new developments are more than welcomed.

NEW YORK.—Almost all glove silk underwear business now being bled here is on immediate delivery basis. Firms that have already put out spring lines report some interest, though still of small bulk.

NEW YORK.—New England and south are now in spotlight for sportswear and sporting paraphernalia. Demand from former place for toggery for tobogganing, skiing, etc., indicates greater popularity for these sports this winter than ever.

NEW YORK.—Local fur market continues fairly active, with caracul, other kid goods, and cheap foxes best sellers. Hudson seal, of which there are large quantities, is moving slowly.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—While still of big volume, cotton yarn business here was less uniformly distributed Saturday than earlier in week. Quotations were quite regular and unchanged.

NEW YORK.—Large quantities of stock goods have been moved out of woolen and worsted piece goods market during last two weeks, at prices from 15 to 20 per cent off the opening quotations.

MANCHESTER, England.—Lancashire cotton goods trade is seriously considering proposal to stop mills which use American cotton every alternate week. Contention is that present curtailment of production is not sufficient.

NEW YORK.—Feature of present business in velvets is that large part of it is

OLD DOBBIN WINS HIMSELF A HOME WITH MEXICANS

MEXICO CITY.—Old Dobbin has won in Mexico. No longer will he suffer tortures by brutal cart drivers and be compelled to work when past the age of retirement.

The Mexican government has placed a large tract of land to the disposal of a newly formed society for the protection of animals, and announcement has been made that laws will be enacted to prohibit brutal treatment of dumb animals.

The society will construct a modern hospital and run it for animals on the land of the government near Chapultepec.

HOPE TO FIND AMBER IN U.S. IN PAY QUANTITY

The world's greatest source of amber is on the shores of the Baltic sea.

Amber is the fossilized resin of several species of pine trees. In small quantities it has been found in various parts of the globe, including the United States, but up to within a comparatively recent period no American deposit of amber extensive enough to be of commercial value has been discovered.

Not so long ago, however, amber was found at Cape Sable on the Magothy river, in Maryland, and this arouses the hope that it may be discovered in paying quantities in this country.

The deposit at Cape Sable has been known since 1821, but only lately has a careful investigation of it been made. The fossil tree trunks in which bits of amber are embedded are not, like those of the Baltic region, pines, but are believed by their discoverer to be specimens of the sequoia.

The New York Times

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The financial markets of the last week, distinct and unmistakable, was the trend of values, were surrounded with a curious incoherence of circumstances. The stock market was falling rapidly, industrial and railway shares both joining in the downward movement. Yet, from the country's industry, despite the situation the best since the last spring of 1920.

Reports of railway traffic proved that the transportation lines are working their maximum of capacity, and a movement of increased dividends was being made by companies. Prices were giving way in the market for common bonds, yet money remained easy as the federal reserve showed increase in the large existing margin of unemployment facilities. The old Liberty bonds were declining to 1 and 1½ points per cent; yet half a billion new United States 4½ per cent offered for par cash, were applied for nearly three times over.

Not New Phenomenon.
The week's rapid decline of the stock market under such seemingly contradictory circumstances is not at all a new phenomenon. It used, indeed, to be a very familiar incident to the business of a prosperous autumn season, the prevailing explanation on all such occasions being that surplus bank resources which were not engaged during the quiet summer months had been poured on day to day loans by Wall Street speculators to bid up the stock market in anticipation of profitable industrial activities; much of this credit had been recalled by banks when the movements of business borrowers slowed, and the stock speculators, finding that they had gone too fast and too far, sold the stocks which they had been buying on such loans.

Reaction in an autumn bond market, even more familiar than the autumn reaction in stocks, sometimes it has been ascribed to actual tightening of money, which affected bond values by raising the interest rate of capital, thereby automatically lowering the valuation of existing securities and inducing investors to convert the bonds into cash which they might need in the current high money market.

Realizing on Bonds.
This special inducement has not existed during the present season. But a well known element in the advance of the bond market since a year ago has been the investment in such bonds by the business community, who could not use the surplus funds of their own business to the prevailing dullness. It is enough to see how even a moderate increase of trade activity might make necessary for such investors to realize their bonds.

Whether they would or would not, the investment in such capital later on, and whether in stocks, sometimes it has been ascribed to actual tightening of money, which affected bond values by raising the interest rate of capital, thereby automatically lowering the valuation of existing securities and inducing investors to convert the bonds into cash which they might need in the current high money market.

The stock market was falling rapidly, industrial and commercial shares both joining in the downward movement. Yet reports from the country's industry described the situation the best since the late part of 1920.

The week's rapid decline in the stock market under such seemingly contradictory circumstances is not at all a new phenomenon. It is, in fact, a very familiar incident to the business of a prosperous autumn season; and the explanation on all such occasions is that the market has been overbought and that the speculative element has been driven out by a sudden change in the market.

What the market has been doing since the week of October 23, 1922, is a very familiar incident to the business of a prosperous autumn season; and the explanation on all such occasions is that the market has been overbought and that the speculative element has been driven out by a sudden change in the market.

Realizing on Bonds. This special inducement has not existed since the present season. But a well known element in the advance of the market since a year ago has been the investment in such bonds of the accumulated capital of merchants or manufacturers who could not use their funds in their own business.

Simple Exchange. This certainly appears a less case. It is a consideration if it is kept in mind that out of the total $763,300,000 bonds sold in the new loan $252,000,000 were sold to the public.

EXTERNAL LOAN

Five Year 6 1/2% Gold Notes of 1922

Dated October 1, 1922 Interest payable April 1 and October 1 Due October 1, 1927

Principal and Interest payable in United States Gold Coin of the present standard of weight and fineness at the office of Blair & Co., New York, Fiscal Agents of the Loan.

Exempt from all Taxes, present or future, imposed by the Republic of Colombia

Coupon Notes in the denomination of $1,000 with the privilege of registration as to principal. Redeemable at the option of the Government in whole or in part on any interest date, on not less than thirty days' notice at 100 and accrued interest.

The following summary has been approved by His Excellency Enrique Olaya Herrera, Colombian Minister to the United States:

SECURITY: These Notes are to be the direct external obligation of the Republic of Colombia.

For the benefit of the holders of the Notes the Loan Contract further provides for the deposit with the Fiscal Agents of drafts on the Customs House at Barranquilla, each for the sum of $83,000,000, and of drafts on the Customs House at Cartagena, each for the sum of $42,000,000, one draft on each of said Customs Houses being payable to the order of the Fiscal Agents each month from October 1, 1923 to September 1, 1927, inclusive, or a total of $6,000,000 U. S. Gold. The moneys thus paid to the Fiscal Agents are to be available for interest on the Notes and at the option of the Government, for their purchase or redemption at not exceeding 100 and interest.

By the Loan Contract it is declared that this Loan shall be a lien on all custom receipts from Barranquilla and Cartagena, except the pledge of $25,000 Sterling per month in favor of the Republic's existing external loans.

CUSTOMS REVENUES: The total receipts (Colombian dollars) at the Customs Houses at Cartagena and Barranquilla are reported as follows:

Year ended December 31, 1917	1918	1919	1920	1921
$6,800,000	$4,550,000	$7,250,000	$13,300,000	$5,900,000

The average receipts, which constitute about 80% of the national customs receipts for said years, average $7,500,000 per annum. After deducting the $25,000 Sterling monthly charge on existing loans they average about $6,000,000 per year. The annual interest on these Notes amounts to $325,000 U. S. Gold.

The national customs receipts at all customs houses for 1922 are officially estimated at $11,000,000, of which about 80% or $8,800,000 are estimated for the Customs Houses of Cartagena and Barranquilla.

PURPOSE: We are advised that the proceeds of these Notes are to be used to retire floating indebtedness held principally in the United States and in Colombia and for other governmental purposes.

NATIONAL DEBT: The aggregate national funded indebtedness, as of December 31, 1921, together with the present floating indebtedness is officially reported at $35,617,935, or about $6.00 per capita. Of this amount slightly more than half, or about $3.00 per capita, represents external funded debt, figured at approximately the current exchange rate. These figures are exclusive of the national currency issued according to the Constitution and limited to $10,000,000.

FOREIGN TRADE: The Foreign Trade of the Republic over a long period, shows a favorable excess of exports above imports. During the past fifteen years imports exceeded exports in only one year. The published statistics show:

Five Year Average 1916-1920 inclusive	Year 1921
Exports (Colombian Dollars) $50,135,000	$63,042,000
Imports (Colombian Dollars) 45,267,000	33,068,000
Total $95,402,000	$96,110,000

The exports for the year 1922 are estimated at $80,000,000.

TREATY PAYMENT: The treaty between the Government of the United States and the Republic of Colombia provides for total payments of $25,000,000 (U. S.) to the Republic of Colombia, the initial payment of $5,000,000 being due in 1922 and the balance in annual installments of $5,000,000 each.

GENERAL: Colombia occupies an area of about 440,000 square miles, or more than that of all the States on the Atlantic Seaboard from Maine to Florida. It has a population of approximately 6,000,000, ranking in third place in population among the South American Republics. It is noted for its wealth and variety of natural resources, being the second largest producer of coffee in the world. Chief among the other agricultural products are bananas, sugar cane, tobacco, medicinal herbs, etc. The Republic is stated to be the largest producer of platinum in the world. Gold, silver and emeralds are mined, and deposits of coal, iron and copper are found. An active development is under way in the Colombian Oil Fields, and American and other foreign interests have made large investments in these fields. Cattle raising is an important industry.

The National income for the present year is officially estimated at $23,903,000, with expenditure estimated at the same figure. A noteworthy feature is the relative stability of its exchange; the current quoted rate is about 96% of par, which is the most favorable of the principal South American Republics.

WINNIPEG LEADS WHEAT ADVANCE; EXPORTERS BUY

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There is a feeling in the grain trade that breaks in prices are to be temporary, and that the trend of values is irregularly higher. Trade leaders are friendly to the buying side of all grains for December delivery, and a few are preferring the May wheat and the December corn.

The volume of the movement and extent of foreign buying is to be a most important factor in influencing values from now on. Indications are that foreign buyers will buy a great deal of wheat and other foodstuffs. Germany, while bankrupt, is understood to have $100,000,000 in bank in the United States for purchasing foodstuffs. It is buying a fair quantity of wheat and a great deal of rye, the latter being the cheapest food it can get. There is an abundance of rye in the northwest which has been sold for export, and there is also a large quantity of grain throughout the west, northwest, and southwest that has also been sold and awaits transportation.

Indications are for a better car supply for a short period both in the east and west. This will help the exporters as well as country holders, and with a larger movement from the country there is likely to be a better export demand.

Winnipeg Leads Bulk.

Wheat supplies abroad are not heavy, and latest cables tell of strength there being created by delayed shipments from America. The movement in the Canadian and American northwest continues heavy, yet Winnipeg prices have hardened and October is up 5/16, December 2 1/4, and May 1/16 as compared with a week ago. At the same time there was around $4,000,000 of cash wheat delivered on October sales, with receipts of 10,474 cars for the week, against 9,977 cars the previous week, and 9,977 cars last year. Winnipeg prices have advanced faster than Chicago, December being up 1/4, May 1/16, and July 1/16 as compared with a week ago.

The primary movement of wheat since July 1 aggregates 29,123,000 bu. or 30,000,000 bu. less than the same time last year, the big decrease being in Kansas City, 16,000,000 bu. and Omaha, 5,000,000 bu., while Chicago has received 24,043,000 bu. or 700,000 bu. more than at the same time last year, and has only 2,869,000 bu. against 4,218,000 bu. last year.

Stocks to Rise Up in East.

Estimates are for a moderate accumulation at primary markets and of liberal piling up of stocks at Buffalo in the next 10 days, as grain will be rushed from Duluth, Port William, and Port Arthur to eastern lake ports prior to the close of navigation. Exports from Montreal, Atlantic, and Gulf ports are to be large during that period, depending on the ability of the railroads and the elevators to handle the business. Gulf ports are not congested and capable of handling all the grain that reaches them for months to come.

December wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at $1.14 1/2, having advanced during the week from 1c discount to 1 1/4 premium over May. The latter finished at $1.12 1/2, and July $1.06 1/2. Prices for the week follow:

U. S. SPOTLIGHT TURNS ON N. Y. GOVERNOR RACE

Miller and Smith in Spectacular Fight

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—About the closest, most complicated and spectacular political contest in the country this year is that over the governorship of New York. Such is the political significance of the struggle for both the major parties that it has come to share the national spotlight with the fight for the control of congress.

Gov. Nathan L. Miller, Republican, and former Gov. Al Smith, Democrat, are running a neck and neck race for the gubernatorial office. Each on standing on his record in the executive office and challenging comparison therewith, is bidding the people to decide whether they wish to continue with the administration they have replaced it with the sort of administration they had in 1919 and 1920.

Both at Bay in Gotham. Both candidates, warming up to high temperature of recrimination with each other as governor, brought their fight into New York City tonight, where they will make the last stand in the state, desperately contesting every inch of ground in the metropolis. Speeches in different parts of the city the two rivals hurled denunciation at each other's record at Albany.

How it will come out one can only guess. The most that can be said at this time with any assurance is that Smith will carry New York City and Miller will carry the state outside of the metropolis.

Whether Miller will come down to the Bronx with a plurality large enough to overcome Smith's plurality in the city is the question upon which all the political speculation, all the maneuvering at party headquarters and the betting, turns.

Will Rural Areas Vote? The big task of the Republican organization is to get out the vote in the rural areas, that traditional Republican stronghold in which the larger the vote the larger the Republican plurality is. If the Republicans poll a normal vote for an off year, the election of Gov. Miller may be regarded as a reasonable expectation.

But old Gen. Apathy has been countered by the Republican slogan to rout him is the target of much concentrated thought on the part of Republican State Chairmen and his co-thinkers. To get the farmers to the polls to vote the Republican ticket straight as of yore is the chief concern of the Republican managers. A light vote in the rural communities would insure the election of Smith.

"A blizzard would ruin us," said one of the Republican leaders, in commenting on the importance of registering a large farmer vote for Miller. Smith's Remarkable Feat. If Smith proves as popular this year as he was two years ago, he will have an advantage in New York City alone which will be exceedingly difficult for Miller to overcome. Though he was defeated in 1920 by the same Miller, opposing him today, the popular hero of about the most extraordinary exploits in political annals.

While Harding carried the state by more than 1,000,000 plurality, Miller beat Smith by only some 73,000 votes. Smith had a plurality of $19,000 in New York City in 1920. It would be amazing if he should be able to poll anywhere near as many votes in 1922 as in the year of a presidential election, but at Tammany Hall the claim of a minimum of 325,000 for Smith in this city, and a confident prediction that Miller's vote advantage will be held down to 70,000 or 250,000 at the outside.

Count on Hylan's Help. The Tammany leaders regard the election as exceedingly conservative. A few of Hylan's record-breaking 400,000 plurality last year. They see the party no less united in support of Smith than of Hylan, whereas in 1920 Hylan was fighting Smith tooth and nail. If the Republican managers are rolling up anything like 425,000 plurality in New York City a week from tomorrow they will be panic stricken. The 325,000 plurality upstate is what they are counting on to give Miller a two years ago and that 250,000 will be his outside margin in the boroughs of the metropolis. There is no doubt that Miller is stronger this year than in 1920, but it is not expected to come anywhere near the 325,000 plurality of 1920. (Continued on page 10, column 1.)
